One For Life Success:

A Society Fit for Human Beings Elie Maynard Adams, 1997-10-31 Argues for a humanistic cultural reformation to counter our materialistic values and science dominated intellectual life and shows how this would affect our lives and transform our society A Society Fit for Human Beings contends that there is a profound incoherence in the foundations of modern Western civilization and that we are on a self destructive course With the quest for wealth and power our dominant concern we find ourselves with a flourishing economy and a supreme military force based on science and technology but with our moral civic and religious culture undermined by our way of comprehending the world Our human identity is problematic the wells of meaning that nourish the human spirit are polluted or drying up and the social order is in disarray This situation E M Adams argues requires nothing less than a historic cultural revolution based on a shift in priorities from wealth and power to humanistic values those grounded in selfhood and lived experience that are essential for human growth meaningful lives and a healthy society Such a shift in our governing values would require a restructuring of our intellectual vision of humankind and the world in terms of humanistic categories This book shows the import of such a humanistic cultural revolution for our human identity morality the social order and our major institutions including the family and community education the economy the government the military and religion It outlines how we can work toward such a cultural revolution and develop a constructive postmodern civilization with a society fit for human beings The Subconscious Mind Gertrude A. Bradford, 2023-03-23 WE HEAR so much these days about the importance of reaching the subconscious mind that it is very easy for one to assume that there is no other important factor in demonstration yet there are two other factors equally if not more important i e arousing the interest of and gaining a response from the subconscious mind No perfect demonstration can be made without each of these three factors receiving the proper consideration Reaching the subconscious mind is merely the preliminary process of demonstration like touching the keys of a piano is but the preliminary steps to producing music To gain a response from the subconscious mind is as necessary in demonstrating material things as it is to awaken a response of tone from the keys of a piano in order to produce a demonstration of music However in order to gain a response from the subconscious mind its interest must be awakened for the determination of the subconscious mind lies at its point of interest hence the more interest awakened the greater and quicker the response The Joy of Success Tochukwu O. Successful Ageing Clemens Tesch-Romer, Hans-Werner Wahl, Suresh Rattan, Liat Ayalon, 2021-10-29 The ambition of ageing science to discover the golden fleece of longevity and health is closely connected to the concept of successful ageing Still for a large portion of the population frailty and cognitive impairment is the reality of ageing and it is by no means certain if health promotion prevention and other interventions will reduce the probability of its occurrence This book argues that a narrow understanding of successful ageing as good health full functioning and active participation in society excludes a large portion of ageing individuals from the quest for a good life in old age The challenge is that the term successful ageing comes with ambitions but also with ambivalence On the one hand it counteracts the deficit view of ageing and facilitates visionary thinking on what might be possible in the future On the other hand its implicitly ageist and derogative features have negative consequences to older people and society at large So what is successful ageing We provide answers at three levels First we synthesise the various models used to define successful ageing into a heuristic scheme able to unravel the normative complexity and differences inherent in existing models Second we anchor successful ageing models in a tripartite way at micro individual meso and macro analytic levels of human development Third we argue that the usefulness of successful ageing in guiding policy will only profit from the concept if it follows a pluralistic and holistic view without hastily deciding for one model only
