Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest (N.F.), East Deer Lodge Valley Landscape Restoration Management Project, 2010 Code of Federal Regulations, Title 40, Protection of Environment, Pt. 50-51, Revised as of July 1, 2009, 2009-10-27 Federal Register, 2014 Sustainable Development of Algal Biofuels in the United States National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Agriculture and Natural Resources, Committee on the Sustainable Development of Algal Biofuels, 2012-12-18 Biofuels made from algae are gaining attention as a domestic source of renewable fuel However with current technologies scaling up production of algal biofuels to meet even 5 percent of U S transportation fuel needs could create unsustainable demands for energy water and nutrient resources Continued research and development could yield innovations to address these challenges but determining if algal biofuel is a viable fuel alternative will involve comparing the environmental economic and social impacts of algal biofuel production and use to those associated with petroleum based fuels and other fuel sources Sustainable Development of Algal Biofuels was produced at the request of the U S Department of Energy Drinking Water Quality and Human Health Patrick Levallois, Cristina Villanueva Belmonte, 2019-04-04 The quality of drinking water is paramount for public health Despite important improvements in the last decades access to safe drinking water is not universal The World Health Organization estimates that almost 10% of the population in the world do not have access to improved drinking water sources Among other diseases waterborne infections cause diarrhea which kills nearly one million people every year mostly children under 5 years of age On the other hand chemical pollution is a concern in high income countries and an increasing problem in low and middle income countries Exposure to chemicals in drinking water may lead to a range of chronic non communicable diseases e g cancer cardiovascular disease adverse reproductive outcomes and effects on children s health e g neurodevelopment among other health effects Although drinking water quality is regulated and monitored in many countries increasing knowledge leads to the need for reviewing standards and guidelines on a nearly permanent basis both for regulated and newly identified contaminants Drinking water standards are mostly based on animal toxicity data and more robust epidemiologic studies with accurate exposure assessment are needed The current risk assessment paradigm dealing mostly with one by one chemicals dismisses the potential synergisms or interactions from exposures to mixtures of contaminants particularly at the low exposure range Thus evidence is needed on exposure and health effects of mixtures of contaminants in drinking water Finally water stress and water quality problems are expected to increase in the coming years due to climate change and increasing water demand by population growth and new evidence is needed to design appropriate adaptation policies This Special Issue of International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health IJERPH focuses on the current state of knowledge on the links between drinking water quality and human health
