Office Jerks Johnathan T, Kenny T, 2019-11-12 It is a daily routine in the life of office workers to deal with people and this involves a lot of communication It is this very act of communicating that can either bring people together or drive people away Everyone in the office has their own agenda and goals and this often creates conflict When conflict occurs we see various characters surface There are the weird outrages and outright strange characters and as we observe these characters we will also notice how they communicate Sometimes it is akin to a battlefield where words fly and hit people like a machine gun or the sudden explosion of a dormant volcano from someone who usually seems calm in demeanor In such an environment only the fittest and wittiest will survive and oftentimes newcomers who are fresh out of college will find it difficult to navigate these hostile waters These freshmen would face characters whom they may never dreamed of or even imagine exists and this can negatively affect someone who is ill prepared This primer serves as the textbook you wish you had when you were in college Education teaches us technical skills and knowledge never has it ever taught us or prepared us to face the realities of the working environment It is this exact lack of preparation for the work environment which can put a lot of stress to freshmen who still think of everyone as a friend And that is the objective of this book to introduce you to the many characters in the working environment who are out to get you and make your working life miserable. We aptly label these people as Office Jerks and they can be more dangerous than a poison arrow frog in the Amazon Jungle. Coming from the experience and advice of over 20 years of working in a corporate environment, we have faced nearly any type of office jerk you can imagine. Ranging from characters who are mere distractions and irritations to characters who are a real potential threat to your career, health, and sanity.
