

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.

2. Once the problem is identified, the next step is to develop a plan or strategy to address it. This may involve consulting with experts or stakeholders to gain different perspectives.

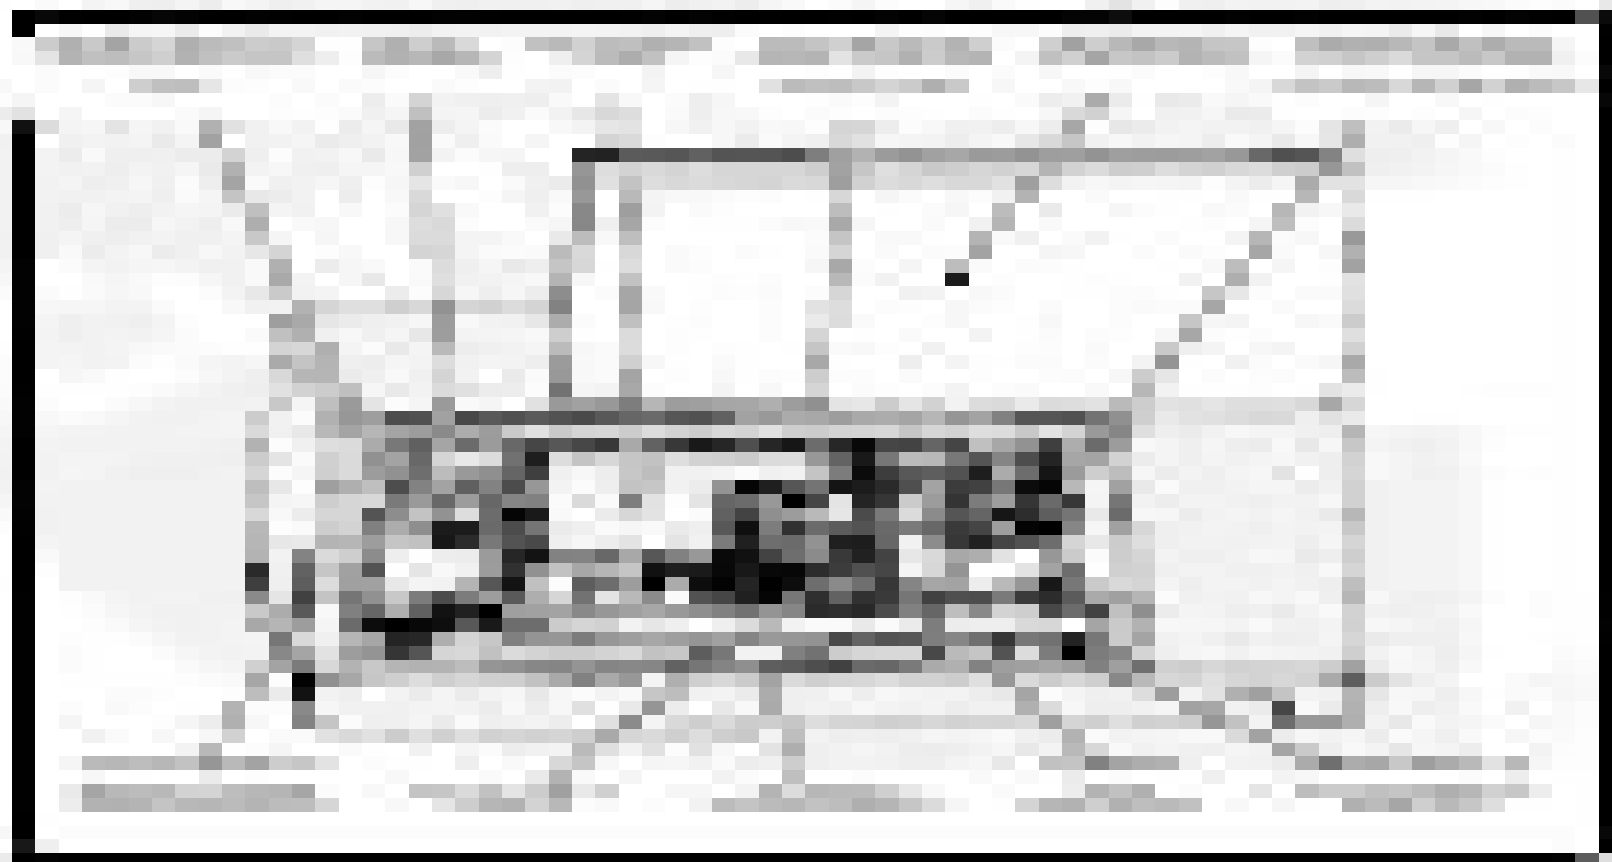

3. The third step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the strategy into action and monitoring progress along the way.

4. Finally, the fourth step is to evaluate the results of the intervention. This involves assessing whether the problem has been solved and if the solution was effective.

5. The final step in the process is to reflect on the experience and learn from it. This involves considering what worked well and what could be improved for future interventions.

6. The process of intervention is a continuous cycle, with each step leading into the next. It is important to remain flexible and open to change throughout the process.
