Developmental Aspects of Health Compliance Behavior Norman A. Krasnegor, Leonard Epstein, Suzanne B. Johnson, Sumner J. Yaffe, Leonard H. Epstein, 2013-05-13 While in the late 1970s and early 1980s health compliance research on adults represented a vigorous field of study a marked decline of interest on the topic set in during the last part of the 1980s By contrast research on health compliance involving pediatric populations was less popular during the same period however interest in this topic as evidenced by the contributions to this volume is on the increase Four main themes relating to theory measurement prevention and intervention emerge and are interwoven among the chapters These themes help to bind and unify the volume into a conceptual whole because although the sections are divided along thematic lines contributors often include elements of some or all of the themes in their chapters This state of affairs reflects the interdependence of these thematic issues and suggests how important they are for the state of the art The Figure of the Child in Contemporary Evangelicalism Anna Strhan, 2019-09-26 What does it mean to grow up as an evangelical Christian today What meanings does childhood have for evangelical adults How does this shape their engagements with children and with schools And what does this mean for the everyday realities of children's lives Based on in depth ethnographic fieldwork

carried out in three contrasting evangelical churches in the UK Anna Strhan reveals how attending to the significance of children within evangelicalism deepens understanding of evangelicals hopes fears and concerns not only for children but for wider British society Developing a new relational approach to the study of children and religion Strhan invites the reader to consider both the complexities of children s agency and how the figure of the child shapes the hopes fears and imaginations of adults within and beyond evangelicalism The Figure of the Child in Contemporary Evangelicalism explores the lived realities of how evangelical Christians engage with children across the spaces of church school home and other informal educational spaces in a de christianizing cultural context how children experience these forms of engagement and the meanings and significance of childhood Providing insight into different churches contemporary cultural and moral orientations the book reveals how conservative evangelicals experience their understanding of childhood as increasingly countercultural while charismatic and open evangelicals locate their work with children as a significant means of engaging with wider secular society Setting out an approach that explores the relations between the figure of the child children s experiences and how adult religious subjectivities are formed in both imagined and practical relationships with children this study situates childhood as an important area of study within the sociology of religion and examines how we should approach childhood within this field both theoretically and methodologically Preventing Adolescent Drug Use ,1991

Chapter contributors include physicians and psychologists who apply principles of developmental and social psychology to their research on specific problems in children's health. Their offerings delineate current areas of collaboration between developmental psychology and behavioral pediatrics. These perspectives should prompt researchers and practitioners to explore additional ways in which more extensive endeavors at the interface of these two disciplines will facilitate efforts to understand children's health behaviors and foster children's well-being. Attention to this work should lead to more direct clinical applicability and translation for preventive policy strategies as well as therapeutic interventions.

Integrated Developmental and Life-course Theories of Offending David P. Farrington, 2017-07-05

Developmental and life course criminology aims to provide information about how offending and antisocial behavior develops about risk and protective factors at different ages and about the effects of life events on the course of development. This volume advances knowledge about these theories of offender behavior many of which have been formulated only in the last twenty years. It also integrates knowledge about individual, family, peer, school, neighborhood, community, and situational influences on offender behavior and combines key elements of earlier theories such as strain, social learning, differential association, and control theory.

Contributors Benjamin B. Lahey and Irwin D. Waldman focus on antisocial propensity and the importance of biological and individual factors. Alex R. Piquero and Terrie E. Moffitt distinguish between life course persistent and adolescent limited offenders. David P. Farrington presents the Integrated Cognitive Antisocial Potential (ICAP) theory which distinguishes between long term and short term influences on antisocial potential. Richard F. Catalano, J. David Hawkins, and their colleagues test the Social Development Model (SDM). Marc Le Blanc proposes an integrated multi-layered control theory in which criminal behavior depends on bonding to society, psychological development, modeling, and constraints. Robert J. Sampson and John H. Laub hypothesize that offending is inhibited by the strength of bonding to family, peers, schools, and later adult social institutions such as marriage and jobs. Terence P. Thornberry and Marvin D. Krohn propose an interactional theory of antisocial behavior. Per Olof H. Wikström's developmental ecological action theory emphasizes the importance of situational factors. Opportunities cause temptation, friction produces provocation, and monitoring and the risk of sanctions have deterrent effects.
