Rising Seas Vivien Gornitz, 2013-03-19 The Earth s climate is already warming due to increased concentrations of human produced greenhouse gases in the atmosphere and the specter of rising sea level is one of global warming s most far reaching threats Sea level will keep rising long after greenhouse gas emissions have ceased because of the delay in penetration of surface warming to the ocean depths and because of the slow dissipation of excess atmospheric carbon dioxide Adopting a long perspective that interprets sea level changes both underway and expected in the near future Vivien Gornitz completes a highly relevant and necessary study of an unprecedented age in Earth s history Gornitz consults past climate archives to help better anticipate future developments and prepare for them more effectively She focuses on several understudied historical events including the Paleocene Eocene Thermal Anomaly the Messinian salinity crisis the rapid filling of the Black Sea which may have inspired the story of Noah s flood and the Storrega submarine slide an incident possibly connected to a sea level occurrence roughly 8 000 years old By examining dramatic variations in past sea level and climate Gornitz concretizes the potential consequences of rapid human induced warming She builds historical precedent for coastal hazards associated with a higher ocean level such as increased damage from storm surge flooding even if storm characteristics remain unchanged Citing the examples of Rotterdam London New York City and other forward looking urban centers that are effectively preparing for higher sea level Gornitz also delineates the difficult economic and political choices of curbing carbon emissions while underscoring through past geological analysis the urgent need to do so

Architecture's Model Environments Lisa Moffitt, 2023-02-20 Seen through the distilling lens of the architectural model Architecture's Model Environments is a novel and far reaching exploration of the many dialogues buildings have with their environmental surroundings Expanding on histories of building technology the book sheds new light on how physical models conventionally understood as engineering experimentation devices enable architectural design speculation The book begins with a catalogue of ten original model prototypes of wind tunnels water tables and filling boxes and is the first of its kind to establish an architectural approach to fabricating such environmental models Subsequent chapters feature three precedent models that have been largely overlooked within the wider oeuvres of their authors French polymath tienne Jules Marey's 1900 2 wind tunnels Hungarian American architects Victor and Alad r Olgyay's 1955 63 thermoheliodon and Scottish chemist and building ventilation expert David Boswell The Ventilator Reid's 1844 test tube convection experiments Moving between historic moments and the present day between case studies and original prototypes the book reveals the potent ability for models as both physical artefacts and mental ideals to reflect prevailing cultural views about the world and to even reshape those views Fundamentally Architecture's Model Environments illustrates how environmental models reveal design insights
