Scott,2023-08-30 Warren Buffett famously invoked the metaphor of a tapeworm when describing what healthcare is to the American economy The United States spends approximately 20% of its gross national product on healthcare but it is unclear where the money goes or who is minding the store This healthcare crisis is mostly about money not lack of money but rather mispending of money From the perspective of a healthcare auditor and provider this work describes the problems of American healthcare finance and proposes solutions Extensive charts and graphs are used to trace where money goes in the American healthcare system while other topics such as ethics in healthcare billing un auditable hospital costs and scams are discussed There is evidence that clearly identifies where the money goes and its destination may surprise the reader The Ethics of Gender-Specific Disease Mary Ann Cutter,2012-10-02 Our understanding of gender carries significant bioethical implications An errant account of gender specific disease can lead to overgeneralizations undergeneralizations and misdiagnoses It can also lead to problems in the structure of health care delivery the creation of policy and the development of clinical curricula In this volume Cutter argues that gender specific disease and related bioethical discourses are philosophically integrative Gender specific disease is integrative because the descriptive roles of gender disease and their relation are inextricably tied to their prescriptive roles within frames of reference An integrative account of gender specific disease carries ethical implications because our understanding of gender specific disease is evaluative and our evaluations of gender specific disease entail judgments concerning the praiseworthiness and blameworthiness of a clinical event Cutter supports a both and emphasis on context and integration in relation to gender specific disease and bioethical analyses While the text mainly focuses on gender specific diseases that affect women Cutter also includes examples involving men children and members of the LGBT community
