puma The varied contributions to this interdisciplinary Special Issue highlight assumptions about the human perception of attitude toward and responsibility for the animals that are read and written about thus demonstrating that just as the animal does not exist neither does the human In their zoopoetic focus the analyses are aware that animal narratology ultimately always contains an approximation of an animal perspective in human terms and terminology yet they make clear that what matters is how the animal is approximated and that there is an effort to approach and encounter the non human in the first place Many of the analyses come to the conclusion that literary animals give readers the opportunity to expand their own points of view both on themselves and others by adopting another s perspective to the degree that such an endeavor is possible Ultimately the contributions call for a recognition of the many spaces moments and modes in which human lives are entangled with those of animals one of which is located within the creative bounds of storytelling

Kubert School the controversial end of his Swamp Thing run his muckraking work as a comics journalist and his educational comics publishing venture Eureka Comics the interviews collected here reveal Veitch to be both a shrewd observer of the pitfalls of the marketplace and an eloquent spokesman for the boundless potential of creativity A comics maker since childhood and a fierce advocate of creator s rights and the possibilities of self publishing Veitch knows all too well the many persistent obstacles to creating comics that challenge readers instead of condescending to them Yet Veitch remains optimistic about the potential of comics According to Veitch comics might be the form of the future If that s the case then his work is a map to that future
