Dear Mr. Butler,

My name is James and I work at Grandview School as an English teacher. Each year we welcome a new class of eager and bright students that we're so excited to get to know. We work hard to make sure we provide amazing learning opportunities and engaging events to bring our school's community together.

This year, we are trying to do a chess tournament. We think that it will create a healthy competitive atmosphere and help some of our less extroverted students to make new friends. Also, some of them are showing very promising results and are aiming to participate in the Longview Chess Tournament.

However, due to our school's budgetary constraints, we had to cut back on school supplies. While we strive to offer our students the best education possible, we need the resources and supplies to keep our chess club running.

We would like to ask that you help us continue the chess club by donating $100.

If you choose to contribute to our school, you will give more than just money. You'll be a hero to the students who will be able to pursue their dream of becoming professional chess players.

Communicating Climate Change Anne K. Armstrong, Marianne E. Krasny, Jonathon P. Schuldt, 2018-11-15 Environmental educators face a formidable challenge when they approach climate change due to the complexity of the science and of the political and cultural contexts in which people live There is a clear consensus among climate scientists that climate change is already occurring as a result of human activities but high levels of climate change awareness and growing levels of concern have not translated into meaningful action Communicating Climate Change provides environmental educators with an understanding of how their audiences engage with climate change information as well as with concrete empirically tested communication tools they can use to enhance their climate change program Starting with the basics of climate science and climate change public opinion Armstrong Krasny and Schuldt synthesize research from environmental psychology and climate change communication weaving in examples of environmental education applications throughout this practical book Each chapter covers a separate topic from how environmental psychology explains the complex ways in which people interact with climate change information to communication strategies with a focus on framing metaphors and messengers This broad set of topics will aid educators in formulating program language for their classrooms at all levels Communicating Climate Change uses fictional vignettes of climate change education programs and true stories from climate change educators working in the field to illustrate the possibilities of applying research to practice Armstrong et al ably demonstrate that environmental education is an important player in fostering positive climate change dialogue and subsequent climate change action Thanks to generous funding from Cornell University the ebook editions of this book are available as Open Access from Cornell Open cornellpress.cornell.edu/cornell-open and other Open Access repositories
