Measuring The Master Race Physical Anthropology In Norway 1890 1945:

Measuring the Master Race Jon Røyne Kyllingstad, 2014 The notion of a superior Germanic or Nordic race was a central theme in the ideology of the Nazis But it was also a commonly accepted idea in the early twentieth century and an actual scientific concept originating from anthropological research on the physical characteristics of Europeans The Scandinavian Peninsula was considered to be the historical cradle and the core area of this master race This book investigates the role played by Scandinavian scholars in inventing this so called superior race and discusses how this concept put its stamp on Norwegian physical anthropology prehistory national identity and on the Norwegian eugenics movement It also explores the decline and scientific disputation of these ideas in the 1930s as they came to be associated with the genetic cleansing of Nazi Germany This is the first comprehensive study on Norwegian physical anthropology and its findings shed new light on current political and scientific debates about race across the globe Publisher's website

National Races Richard Eoin McMahon, 2019-08-01 National Races explores how politics interacted with transnational science in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries This interaction produced powerful racialized national identity discourses whose influence continues to resonate in today's culture and politics Ethnologists anthropologists and raciologists compared modern physical types with ancient skeletal finds to unearth the deep prehistoric past and true nature of nations These scientists understood certain physical types to be what Richard McMahon calls national races or the ageless biological essences of nations Contributors to this volume address a central tension in anthropological race classification On one hand classifiers were nationalists who explicitly or implicitly used race narratives to promote political agendas Their accounts of prehistoric geopolitics treated national races as the proxies of nations in order to legitimize present day geopolitical positions On the other hand the transnational community of race scholars resisted the centrifugal forces of nationalism Their interdisciplinary project was a vital episode in the development of the social sciences using biological race classification to explain the history geography relationships and psychologies of nations National Races goes to the heart of tensions between nationalism and transnationalism politics and science by examining transnational science from the perspective of its peripheries Contributors to the book supplement the traditional focus of historians on France Britain and Germany with myriad case studies and examples of nineteenth and early twentieth century racial and national identities in countries such as Russia Italy Poland Greece and Yugoslavia and among Jewish anthropologists

Constructing Race on the Borders of Europe Marsha Morton, Barbara Larson, 2021-03-25 Constructing Race on the Borders of Europe investigates the visual imagery of race construction in Scandinavia Austro Hungary Germany and Russia It covers a period when historic disciplines of ethnography and anthropology were expanding and theorists of race were debating competing conceptions of biological geographic linguistic and cultural determinants Beginning in 1850 and extending into the early 21st century this book explores how paintings photographs prints and other artistic media engaged with these discourses and shaped visual representations of subordinate ethnic populations and material cultures in countries associated with theorizations of white identity The chapters contribute to postcolonial research by documenting the colonial style treatment of minority groups by exploring the anomalies and complexities that emerge when binary systems are seen from the perspective of the fine and applied arts and by representing the voices of those who produced images or objects that adopted altered or critiqued ethnographic and anthropological information In doing so Constructing Race on the Borders of Europe uncovers instances of unexpected connections establishes the fabricated nature of ethnic identity and challenges the certainties of racial categorization

The Races of Europe Richard McMahon, 2016-11-15 This book explores a vital but neglected chapter in the histories of nationalism racism and science It is the first comprehensive study of the transnational scientific community that in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries attempted to classify Europe's biological races Anthropological race classifiers produced parallel geographies histories and hierarchies of European peoples that were crucial to the creation of national identities and to the overtly political race discourses of eugenics and popular racist ideologues They lent nationalism the invaluable prestige of natural science and traced the histories conflicts and relationships of national races back into prehistory Racial national character stereotypes meanwhile supported competing political ideologies The book examines the interplay between class gender and national identity narratives and the tensions and interactions between the scientific and political agendas of classifiers Within the elaborate transnational networks of scientific communities for example they had to reconcile competing national narratives

Behaviour, Development and Evolution

Patrick Bateson, 2017-02-20 The role of parents in shaping the characters of their children the causes of violence and crime and the roots of personal unhappiness are central to humanity Like so many fundamental questions about human existence these issues all relate to behavioural development In this lucid and accessible book eminent biologist Professor Sir Patrick Bateson suggests that the nature nurture dichotomy we often use to think about questions of development in both humans and animals is misleading Instead he argues that we should pay attention to whole systems rather than to simple causes when trying to understand the complexity of development In his wide ranging approach Bateson discusses why so much behaviour appears to be well designed He explores issues such as imprinting and its importance to the attachment of offspring to their parents the mutual benefits that characterise communication between parent and offspring the importance of play in learning how to choose and control the optimal conditions in which to thrive and the vital function of adaptability in the interplay between development and evolution Bateson disputes the idea that a simple link can be found between genetics and behaviour What an individual human or animal does in its life depends on the reciprocal nature of its relationships with the world about it This knowledge also points to ways in which an animal's own behaviour can provide the variation that influences the subsequent course of evolution This has relevance not only for our scientific approaches to the systems of development and evolution but also on how humans change institutional rules that have become dysfunctional or design public health measures when mismatches occur between themselves and their environments It affects how we think about ourselves and our own capacity for change

Anthropology and Race in Belgium and the Congo (1839-1922) Maarten Couttenier, 2023-11-03 This book examines the history of Belgian physical anthropology in the long nineteenth century and discusses how the notion of race structured Belgian pasts and presents as well as relations between metropole and empire In a context of competing European nationalisms Belgian anthropologists mainly used physical characters like skull form and the color of hair and eyes to delimitate races which were believed to be permanent and existent Their belief in a supposed racial superiority was however above all telling about their own origins and physical characters Although it is often assumed that these ideas were subsequently transferred to the colony the case of Belgian colonization in Congo shows that colonial administrators at least in theory were reluctant to use the idea of permanent races because they needed the possibility of evolution to legitimize their actions as part of a civilizing mission In reality however colonization was based on military occupation and economic exploitation with devastating effects This book analyzes how in this violent context widespread racial prejudices in fact dehumanized Congolese This not only allowed colonizers to act inhuman but also reduced Congolese or their body parts to objects that could be measured photographed casted and collected This volume will be of use to students and scholars alike interested in social and cultural history as well as imperial and colonial history

Historicizing Race Marius Turda, Maria Sophia Quine, 2018-02-22 The idea of race may be outdated as many commentators and scholars working in a broad range of different fields in the sciences and humanities have argued over many years Nevertheless it remains one of the most persistent forms of human classification Theories of race primitivism the idea that there is a natural racial hierarchy and ranking order of inferior and superior races race biologism the belief that people can be classified by genetic features which are shared by members of racial groups and race essentialism the notion that races can be defined by scientifically identifiable and verifiable cultural and physical characteristics are deeply embedded in modern history culture and politics Historicizing Race offers a new understanding of this reality by exploring the interconnectedness of scientific cultural and political strands of racial thought in Europe and elsewhere It re conceptualises the idea of race by unearthing various historical traditions that continue to inform not only current debates about individual and collective identities but also national and international politics In a concise format accessible to students and scholars alike the authors draw out some of the reasons why race centred thinking has in recent years re emerged in such shocking and explicit form in current populist xenophobic and anti immigration movements offers a complete narrative of the development of Nordicism from its roots in the National Romantic movement of the late eighteenth century through to its most notorious manifestation in Nazi Germany and finally to the fragmented forms that still remain in contemporary society It is distinctive in treating Nordicism as a phenomenon with its own narrative rather than as discreet episodes in works studying aspects of Eugenics Nationalism Nazism and the reception history of Old Norse culture It is also distinctive in applying to this narrative a framework of analysis derived from the parallel theories of Roger Griffin and Zygmunt Bauman to examine Nordicism as a process of myth creation protecting both the individual and society from the challenges and terror of an ever changing and accelerating state of modernity The Cambridge World History of

Transnational Representations of the Region, 1840-1940 Giulia Bruna, Margu rite Corporaal, Christopher Cusack, Sophie van Os, Anneloek Scholten, 2025-09-08 The nineteenth century witnessed an upsurge of interest in the region across Europe and North America in media ranging from literary fiction to the illustrated periodical and from visual arts to architecture This rise of regionalism has often been linked to nationalism and nation building However depictions of the region circulated across borders or interacted with transnational cultural repertoires of the local These often overlooked transnational aspects are the focus of this volume which considers cultural representations of the region during the long nineteenth century in its variety of dimensions across all expressive media This collection consistently draws out the border crossing dynamics through which the very perception of regions is generated and maintained Contributions by established and emerging scholars all rise to the challenge of contextualizing representations of specific regions in transnational networks of exchange The volume is resolutely interdisciplinary encompassing various literary genres as well as music visual arts and world fairs It will ensure that the region is in the best possible sense all over the place Rapha l Ingelbien Professor of English Literature at KU Leuven

Science as Social Existence Jeff Kochan, 2017-12-18 In this bold and original study Jeff Kochan constructively combines the sociology of scientific knowledge SSK with Martin Heidegger s early existential conception of science Kochan shows convincingly that these apparently quite different approaches to science are in fact largely compatible even mutually reinforcing By combining Heidegger with SSK Kochan argues we can explicate elaborate and empirically ground Heidegger s philosophy of science in a way that makes it more accessible and useful for social scientists and historians of science Likewise incorporating Heideggerian phenomenology into SSK renders SSK a more robust and attractive methodology for use by scholars in the interdisciplinary field of Science and Technology Studies STS Kochan s ground breaking reinterpretation of Heidegger also enables STS scholars to sustain a principled analytical focus on scientific subjectivity without running afoul of the orthodox subject object distinction they often reject Science as Social Existence is the first book of its kind unfurling its argument through a range of topics relevant to contemporary STS research These include the epistemology and metaphysics of scientific practice as well as the methods of explanation appropriate to social scientific and historical studies of science Science as Social Existence puts concentrated emphasis on the compatibility of Heidegger's existential conception of science with the historical sociology of scientific knowledge pursuing this combination at both macro and micro historical levels Beautifully written and accessible Science as Social Existence puts new and powerful tools into the hands of sociologists and historians of science cultural theorists of science Heidegger scholars and pluralist philosophers of science
