

Boat Performance

Boat Acceleration

WARNING

A tight grip on the steering wheel while handle is always essential and is required when accelerating. Accelerating or when slowing the boat, the handle will flex. When slowing moving speed, the handle should be moved to return a balanced steering position. When slowing steering loads will vary and will put in one direction until a balanced condition has been attained. If the outboard is allowed past the fast-speed steering condition, the steering wheel will handle then will have a tendency to put in the opposite direction. Excessive slowing past the balanced steering position will result in increased steering loads, and in most boat applications, a decrease in performance.

CAUTION

When slowing boat with dual outboards, both outboards should be at approximately the same tilt angle and be about out outboard. The present boat from getting into a side with desired boat velocity is achieved. Outboards can then be returned individually to precisely adjust boat tilt angle and pitch.

1. With boat in water, with the outboarded drive button, to remote control handle so that the drive on the side of boat is horizontal. This is a typical average setting that should give reasonable acceleration and top speed.
2. Do for a short familiarization ride of various throttle and trim settings BEFORE starting testing.

NOTE: Instruments should be read with eye directly in front to eliminate any error in reading the instruments.

3. When making either top speed or acceleration runs, best accuracy will be obtained by running with or against any wind. Side winds require driving at a constant turn to keep the boat moving straight-ahead. If winds are 10 MPH (16 km/hr) or greater, it is suggested that all acceleration runs be made downwind.

Boat Test Chart (Example)

Propeller Diameter and Pitch	RPM 100%	RPM 50%	Acceleration Time in Seconds	Propeller Boat Load		Wind during Run		Water Condition	Air Temperature (°F)	Comments
				During Acceleration	During Turns	Direction	gust
19" x 19" 19" x 19"	2200	1100	1	Light	no	↗	1	2" chop	73
			2	no	no		1	2" chop	73

* WOT is wide-open-throttle

4. Use the speed boat wide-open-throttle run should be kept with the boat running facing in direction of wind coming outboard. Outboard run in gear at WOT and make 180° degree turn and within the recommended full throttle RPM range coast to the Upstream and Downstream Station.

NOTE: When performing an acceleration test, it is recommended that a dual watch be used to measure water direction. A dual watch with a second hand can also be substituted.

5. An acceleration test can also be performed if desired. When the boat with dual outboards in the water and full-throttle is required. A stop watch should be started as the handle is quickly moved to start full-throttle position. Stop the watch as the boat comes nearly steady speed at WOT (100% throttle). Second time should be used to secure a good average.
6. Prior "break loose" condition higher RPM, if not excessive, in some cases can be observed during acceleration. If excessive "break loose" occurs, it can be decreased by trimming the outboard handle up. If it remains excessive with all trimmer pin pulled, the outboard must be serviced.
7. It is suggested that all appropriate data be recorded on a sheet (such as that illustrated, following) and retained for future reference.
8. After several propellers of different pitch and/or design have been tried, select one that best serves the general purpose of the boat. The selected propeller should enable the engine to operate within its recommended full throttle RPM range, without excessive propeller "break loose" during acceleration at WOT. A second propeller that would make both a reliable spare or a special purpose alternate might also be desirable.

NOTE: A higher pitch often gives best top speed, but the best trim pitch gives adequate top speed with much better acceleration.
