charter network marketizes teaching and learning through the author's 1000 hours of covert participant observation at a network charter school. In her research Brooks found that the AAG pseudonym network re-conceptualized teaching by urging staff to envision their careers in corporate education rather than in classroom teaching. While some employees received a boost up the corporate ladder, others found themselves being pushed out of the organization. Despite AAG's equity-conscious discourse, administrators emphasized controlling student behavior as a central measure of teaching effectiveness.
