The Boyce Papers Sue Bradbury, Susan Miller Bradbury, 2019 The first full edition of the correspondence between three artists Joanna Boyce her brother George P. Boyce and Henry Wells whom she eventually married It dates from the period 1845 to 1861 and covers artistic life in both Paris and London including the Pre-Raphaelites This correspondence between three artists Joanna Boyce her brother George P. Boyce and Henry Wells whom she eventually married dates from the period 1845 to 1861 They were all friends of Rossetti and the Pre-Raphaelite circle but in addition Henry and Joanna both studied in Paris and Joanna wrote extensively about her time there training with Thomas Couture She wrote for The Saturday Review as well as painting a small number of very interesting and much admired pictures Her brother George established himself as a successful watercolourist and member of the Old Watercolour Society having been encouraged both by David Cox on his Welsh sketching expeditions and by Ruskin whose letters advising him what to paint in Venice are included here Henry Wells was primarily a portrait painter At first he specialised in miniatures and was commissioned to paint Mary princess of Cambridge by Queen Victoria There are vivid accounts of visits to country houses to carry out commissions from their owners The three wrote constantly about techniques of painting and about the new colours that became available at this period and about their visits to exhibitions both in Paris and London They all contributed to the Royal Academy and other exhibitions In addition there is the extraordinary story of Joanna's and Henry's courtship and marriage at first encouraged and then viciously opposed by Joanna's recently widowed mother The correspondence survives only in an unpublished transcript made in the 1940s as the originals were all destroyed in a bombing raid on Bath during the second world war Excerpts from George P Boyce's diaries were published in the 1930s but the present edition contains a considerable amount of new material

Pollard's Code Biennial, 1912 Virginia, 1912      A New and Extensive Analytical Examination of the Elements of Mental Science Moses Smith, 1855      Man on Two Ponies Don Worcester, 2014-06-02 He was the son of Pawnee Killer the last in a line of mystic warriors of the Great American Plains Indian tribes When his father fled to Canada with Sitting Bull after the battle of Little Big Horn after the best and the strongest of the Sioux were gone Running Elk stood unwittingly at the crossroads of history Running Elk tried to run away from the reservation to find his father but he didn't get far He'd hardly begun his journey when the Indian Police came for him to ship him off to school in the white man's world with 33 other boys and girls They were taken by wagon then by riverboat and finally by train to the abandoned army barracks of Carlisle Pennsylvania On the train many of the children thought they were being taken to the moon hanging over the tracks They might as well have been At the Indian school they were disciplined their hair was cut short they were taken to church and they were taught to live like the despised Wasicun They would be taught to work leather and wood Their names were changed Running Elk became William Billy gazed at the distant hills and the open stretches of prairie grass on every side The land seemed much vaster and the sky bluer than he had remembered He should never have left this land Once he belonged here now he belonged nowhere The whites hated him for being too Indian the Indians hated him for being too much white When Ghost Dances began and the tribes started to follow the new prophet Wovoka Billy wondered which way he would turn Would he follow the road paved for him by his white education or would he join his father and fight like the warrior he was meant to be
