Learning from Our Buildings National Research Council,Board on Infrastructure and the Constructed Environment,Federal Facilities Council,2002-01-29 In 1986 the FFC requested that the NRC appoint a committee to examine the field and propose ways by which the POE process could be improved to better serve public and private sector organizations The resulting report Post Occupancy Evaluation Practices in the Building Process Opportunities for Improvement proposed a broader view of POEs from being simply the end phase of a building project to being an integral part of the entire building process. The authoring committee recommended a series of actions related to policy procedures and innovative technologies and techniques to achieve that broader view. In 2000 the FFC funded a second study to look at the state of the practice of POEs and lessons learned programs among federal agencies and in private public and academic organizations both here and abroad. The sponsor agencies specifically wanted to determine whether and how information gathered during POE processes could be used to help inform decisions made in the programming budgeting design construction and operation phases of facility acquisition in a useful and timely way. To complete this study the FFC commissioned a set of papers by recognized experts in this field conducted a survey of selected federal agencies with POE programs and held a forum at the National Academy of Sciences on March 13 2001 to address these issues. This report is the result of those efforts. Edelman and Kudzma's Canadian Health Promotion Throughout the Life Span - E-Book Marian Luctkar-Flude, Jane Tyerman, Shannon Dames, 2025-02-27. Johnson, 2019-06-10. A Handbook of Process Tracing Methods demonstrates how to better understand decision outcomes by studying decision processes through the introduction of a number of exciting techniques. Decades of research have identified numerous idiosyncrasies in human decision behavior but some of the most recent advances in the scientific study of decision making involve the development of sophisticated methods for understanding decision process known as process tracing. In this volume leading experts discuss the application of these methods and focus on the best practices for using some of the more popular techniques discussing how to incorporate them into formal decision models. This edition has been expanded and thoroughly updated throughout and now includes new chapters on mouse tracking protocol analysis neurocognitive methods the measurement of valuation as well as an overview of important software packages. The volume not only surveys cutting edge research to illustrate the great variety in process tracing techniques but also serves as a tutorial for how the novice researcher might implement these methods. A Handbook of Process Tracing Methods will be an essential read for all students and researchers of decision making.
