After WWII, some immigrants had some different backgrounds (backgrounds) from immigrants (immigrants) who came before them. They found other people that were a little different. They had some different customs and some differently had learned the ways of life in the United States. Some of these people were from Japan, and some from Germany. People who had been in the United States for a long time would have been really used to the ways of life in the United States. But the new immigrants had to learn the ways of life in the United States. They were probably learning the language. Some of these people had been in the United States for a long time, but they were not used to the ways of life in the United States. They were not used to the ways of life in the United States.
