Family Functioning John J. Schwab, Helen Gray-Ice, Florence R. Prentice, 2006-04-18 The family that most fundamental of human groups is currently perceived to be changing in response to social biological cultural and technological developments in our postmodern society While the observed changes in families have been considered by some sociologists to be evidence of adaptation and therefore normal the authors of this volume consider them maladaptive Viewing society from the point of view of clinical psychiatry they point to greatly increased numbers of children born to single mothers soaring rates of divorce a statistically confirmed increase in mental disorders increase in reported incest high rates of depression in younger people and escalation of the amount of reported family violence as evidence that the family as a social institution is in crisis and can either move toward renewed vitality or continued deterioration Perceiving a need to obtain information about family functioning that might lead to the increased stability and well being of this critically important type of system Dr John Schwab and his associates designed and carried out a research program that began with a thorough review of relevant literature beginning with LePlay's study of 300 families in the 1850s and including important recent statistical studies They found that although these studies represent advances in understanding the family system some serious problems with the research remain one of which is confounding variables such as family function and mental or substance abuse disorders so that if a family member has a problem such as drug abuse the family is classified as dysfunctional

Evaluating Family Programs Francine H. Jacobs, 2017-10-24 The diverse composition of American families and changing ways of raising our children have become subjects of intense scrutiny by researchers and policymakers in recent years Shifting demographics and work patterns growing numbers of women in the work force teenage pregnancy single parent families and the deinstitutionalization of the elderly disabled and mentally ill all these trends have significantly affected family life Evaluating Family Programs effectively bridges the gap between researchers and practitioners in order to bring practical understandable advice to providers of family programs and to program funders and policymakers Heather B Weiss and Francine H Jacobs have collected in this volume works which move outside the traditional approaches of their disciplines to create new models for delivering and evaluating services This sets a mood of genuine inquiry and excitement about successful aspects of programs while maintaining openness about the limitations of both research and practice By expanding the research model this work is an attempt to understand reciprocal influences of extended family culture community and social institutions It urges those who advocate program accountability to understand that not all types of evaluations are appropriate for all programs and it notes that limitations in current evaluation technologies make it difficult to evaluate outcomes Evaluating Family Programs reminds the reader that in order to develop sound family policy we must look at children and families in context Because policymakers program administrators and informed citizens have come to rely more upon the results of evaluation research we must improve our methods while not losing sight of its limitations It is a thought provoking contribution to the efforts of those who seek to support the American family with compassion understanding and realism Evidence-Based Practice Manual Albert R. Roberts, Kenneth Yeager, 2004-01-15 This book provides an interdisciplinary approach summarising the key elements issues concepts and procedures in developing and applying evidence based practice Discussions include programme evaluation quality and operational improvement strategies research grant applications utilising statistical procedures and more

Sourcebook of Family Theories and Methods Pauline Boss, William J. Doherty, Ralph LaRossa, Walter R. Schumm, Suzanne K. Steinmetz, 1993-03-31 Origins We call this book on theoretical orientations and methodological strategies in family studies a sourcebook because it details the social and personal roots i e sources from which these orientations and strategies flow Thus an appropriate way to preface this book is to talk first of its roots its beginnings In the mid 1980s there emerged in some quarters the sense that it was time for family studies to take stock of itself A goal was thus set to write a book that like Janus would face both backward and forward a book that would give readers both a perspective on the past and a map for the future There were precedents for such a project The Handbook of Marriage and the Family edited by Harold Christensen and published in 1964 the two Contemporary Theories about the Family volumes edited by Wesley Burr Reuben Hill F Ivan Nye and Ira Reiss published in 1979 and the Handbook of Marriage and the Family edited by Marvin Sussman and Suzanne Steinmetz then in production
