Race and the Wild West Laura J. Arata, 2020-07-02 Winner of the Western Writers of America SPUR Award and the Western Association of Women Historians Gita Chaudhuri Prize Born a slave in eastern Tennessee Sarah Blair Bickford 1852 1931 made her way while still a teenager to Montana Territory where she settled in the mining boomtown of Virginia City Race and the Wild West is the first full length biography of this remarkable woman whose life story affords new insight into race and belonging in the American West around the turn of the twentieth century For many years Sarah Bickford's known biography fit into a single paragraph By examining her life in all its complexity Arata fills in what were long believed to be unrecoverable silent spaces in her story Before establishing herself as a successful business owner we learn she was twice married both times to white men Her first husband an Irish immigrant physically abused her until she divorced him in 1881 Their three children all died before the age of ten In 1883 she married Stephen Bickford and gave birth to four more children Upon his death she inherited his shares of the Virginia City Water Company acquiring sole ownership in 1917 For the final decade of her life Bickford actively preserved and promoted a historic Virginia City building best known as the site of the brutal lynching in 1864 of five men Her conspicuous role in developing an early form of heritage tourism challenges long standing narratives that place white men at the center of the Wild West myth and its promotion Bickford's story offers a window into the dynamics of race in the rural West Although her experiences defy easy categorization what is clear is that her navigation of social norms and racial barriers did not hinge on exceptionalism or tokenism Instead she built a life that deserves to be understood on its own terms Through exhaustive research and nuanced analysis Laura J Arata advances our understanding of a woman whose life embodied the contradictory intersections of hope and disappointment that characterized life in the early twentieth century American West for brave pioneers of many races

Steady State and Time Dependent Compressed Air Energy Storage Model Validated with Huntorf Operational Data and Investigation of Hydrogen Options for a Sustainable Energy Supply Friederike Kaiser, 2020-12-17 Wind power and photovoltaic energy play a significant role in sustainable energy systems However these two renewable energy sources do not generate electrical energy on demand and are subject to natural fluctuations Thus the need for compensatory measures arises Compressed air energy storage power plants CAES are a possible solution to providing negative and positive control energy in the electric grid However in contrast to other energy storage devices such as pumped hydro energy storage or batteries the storage medium compressed air hardly contains any energy or more precisely enthalpy Yet compressed air storage allows the operation of highly efficient gas turbines which are not only particularly fast available but also achieve better efficiency than combined cycle power plants used today as illustrated by the example of the modern gas and steam power plant Irsching with η_{tc} 60% from 2011 compared to the 20 years older McIntosh CAES with η_{tc} 82.4 % In this thesis the calculation methods for the thermodynamics of the CAES process are presented and validated by measured data from the operations of the CAES power plant Huntorf Both the steady state and the dynamic time dependent analyses of the process take place The characteristic value efficiency is discussed in detail since numerous different interpretations for CAES exist in the literature A new calculation method for the electric energy storage efficiency is presented and a method for the calculation of an economically equivalent electricity storage efficiency is developed Consideration is given to the transformation of the CAES process into a hydrogen driven and thus greenhouse gas free process Finally a model CAES system is tested in a 100 % renewable model environment Consequently it can be stated that in the steady state thermodynamic calculation in particular the consideration of realistic isentropic efficiencies of compressors and turbines is essential to correctly estimate the characteristic values of the process Furthermore a steady state view should always be accompanied by dynamic considerations since some process characteristics are always time dependent The simulation shows that by mapping transient operating conditions the overall efficiency of the system must be corrected downwards Nevertheless in the model environment of a 100 % renewable energy system it has been shown that a CAES is a useful addition that can provide long term energy storage
