

NORTHROP FRYE: THE ARCHETYPES OF LITERATURE

Introduction

Northrop Frye was born in Canada in 1921 and studied at Toronto University and Merton College, Oxford University. Initially he was a student of theology and then he switched over to literature. He published his first book, Fearful Symmetry: A Study of William Blake in 1947. The book is a highly original study of the poetry of Blake and it is considered a classic critical work. Northrop Frye rose to international prominence with the publication of Anatomy of Criticism, in 1957 and it firmly established him as one of the most brilliant, original and influential of modern critics. Frye died in 1991. On the whole, he wrote about twenty books on Western literature, culture, myth, archetypal theory, religion and social thought. The Fables of Identity: Studies in Poetic Mythology is a critical work published in 1963. The present essay, "Archetypes of Literature," is taken from the book. In the essay Frye critically analyses literature against the backdrop of rituals and myths. He interprets literature in the light of various rituals and myths. Frye has divided the essay into three parts. The first part deals with the concept of archetypal criticism. The second part throws light on the inductive method of analysis of a text. The third part focuses on the deductive method of analysis. All the methods fall under structural criticism.

Part-I THE CONCEPT OF ARCHETYPAL CRITICISM

Literature can be interpreted in as many ways as possible, and there are different approaches to literature, and one among them is the archetypal approach. The term "archetype" means an original idea or pattern of something of which others are copies. Archetypal approach is the interpretation of a text in the light of cultural patterns involved in it, and these cultural patterns are based on the myths and rituals of a race or nation or social group. Myths and rituals are explored in a text for discovery of meaning and message. In recent times this type of critics' approach to a text has gained popularity. James George Frazer and Carl Gustav Jung are the two great authorities who, have greatly contributed to the development of archetypal approach. Frazer was a social anthropologist and his book The Golden Bough makes a study of magic, religion and myths of different races. Jung was a psychologist associated with Freud. The "collective consciousness" is a major theory of Jung. According to Jung, civilized man "unconsciously" preserves the ideas, concepts and values of life cherished by his distant forefathers, and such ideas are expressed in a society's or race's myths and rituals. Creative writers have used myths in their works and critics analyze texts for a discovery of "mythological patterns." This kind of critical analysis of a text is called archetypal criticism. T.S. Eliot has used mythical patterns in his creative works and The Waste Land is a good example of it. Northrop Frye in his essay does not analyze any particular myth in a work and in fact, he presents an analysis of "mythical patterns" which have been used by writers in general.

Northrop Frye The Archetypes Of Literature:

Anatomy of Criticism Northrop Frye, 2020-05-19 A landmark work of literary criticism Northrop Frye's Anatomy of Criticism is the magnum opus of one of the most important and influential literary theorists of the twentieth century. Breaking with the practice of close reading of individual texts, Frye seeks to describe a common basis for understanding the full range of literary forms by examining archetypes, genres, poetic language, and the relations among the text, the reader, and society. Using a dazzling array of examples, he argues that understanding the structure of literature as a total form also allows us to see the profoundly liberating effect literature can have.

Jungian Literary Criticism Richard P. Sugg, 1992 Symmetry Marc J. Straus, 2000 In this second book of poems, oncologist Marc J. Straus addresses the hopes and the tragedies of his profession. The work is a commentary on his experience in the medical field and a collection of rich, vivid monologues written from the points of view of both doctor and patient. These poems show a rare sensitivity not only to those who are suffering but also to the details that distinguish each life.

Literary Theories in Praxis Shirley F. Staton, 1987 Literary Theories in Praxis analyzes the ways in which critical theories are transformed into literary criticism and methodology. To demonstrate the application of this analysis, critical writings of Roland Barthes, Harold Bloom, Cleanth Brooks, Jacques Derrida, Northrop Frye, Norman Holland, Barbara Johnson, Jacques Lacan, Adrienne Rich, and Robert Scholes are examined in terms of the primary critical stance each author employs: New Critical, phenomenological, archetypal, structuralist, semiotic, sociological, psychoanalytic, reader response, deconstructionist, or humanist. The book is divided into nine sections, each with a prefatory essay explaining the critical stance taken in the selections that follow and describing how theory becomes literary criticism. In a headnote to each selection, Staton analyzes how the critic applies his or her critical methodology to the subject literary work. Shirley F. Staton's introduction sketches the overall philosophical positions and relationships among the various critical modes.

Archetypes in Dalit Literature Chandna Singh Nirwan, 2025-03-28 Archetypes in Dalit Literature examines the role of the multitudinous archetypes and myths in understanding the evolution of the psyche and consciousness of the Parayar Dalit community based out of Tamil Nadu, India. This book also examines the other Dalit communities like Bhangis, Chuhras, and Madigas through the lens of archetypal criticism. This is a nuanced take on Dalit Studies where Western thought and theory have been applied to the colossal work of a Tamil Dalit writer, Bama, and others. Mulk Raj Anand, Omprakash Valmiki, Sharankumar Limbale, and Perumal Murugan to comprehend the community archetypal characters, setting, myths, rituals, and language. A detailed analysis of the Jungian archetypes of Rebirth, Mother, Spirit, and Trickster has helped in acquiring an understanding of the so-called lower caste, their circumstances, their life, and experiences. Among the seminal works on myth criticism are Joseph Campbell's Monomyth and Vladimir Propp's Functions. One of Bama's works, Vanmam (2008), largely adheres to these structures, which makes it a good example of fiction based on reality and thereby also making it at par with the mainstream Indian Writing in English. Chandna has also analyzed the significance of community myths, stories, and folklore using the concept of implicit mythology This book also studies the Dalit language as a special case and unfolds various meanings about the culture community and people in context An important finding is that the language of marginalization is very much a reality Bama s narratives are true representations of the journey of the Parayar Dalit identity formation and the changes it has undergone over time The study of the different aspects of the lives ideologies and culture of the marginalized section of Indian society as represented by these writers in their works has enhanced the understanding of their significant role and contribution to Indian society which may not have over time been acknowledged yet undeniably needs to be appreciated and celebrated

The Mythopoeic Code of Tolkien Jyrki Korpua, 2021-05-20 J R R Tolkien is arguably the most influential fantasy writer of all time his world building and epic mythology have changed Western audiences imaginations and the entire fantasy genre This book is the first wide ranging Christian Platonic reading on Tolkien's fiction This analysis written for scholars and general Tolkien enthusiasts alike discusses how his fiction is constructed on levels of language myth and textuality that have a background in the Greek philosopher Plato's texts and early Christian philosophy influenced by Plato It discusses the concepts of ideal and real creation and existence and fall and struggle as central elements of Tolkien's fiction focusing on The Hobbit The Lord of the Rings The Silmarillion and The History of Middle earth Reading Tolkien's fiction as a depiction of ideal and real from the vision of creation to the process of realization illuminates a part of Tolkien's aesthetics and mythology that previous studies have overlooked

Northrop Frye's Notebooks on Renaissance Literature Michael Dolzani, 2006-12-15 Although Northrop Frye's first book Fearful Symmetry 1947 elevated the reputation of William Blake from the status of a minor eccentric to that of a major Romantic poet Frye in fact saw Blake as a poet and consequently himself as a critic not of the Romantic period but of the Renaissance As such Frye's meditations on the Renaissance are particularly valuable This volume collects six of Frye's notebooks and five sets of his typed notes on subjects related to Renaissance literature Michael Dolzani divides these notes into three categories those on Spenser and the epic tradition those on Shakespearean drama and more widely the dramatic tradition from Old Comedy to the masque and those on lyric poetry and non fiction prose The organization of this volume reflects a comprehensive study of Renaissance Symbolism in three volumes which Frye proposed to the Guggenheim Foundation in 1949 Frye received a Guggenheim fellowship but never wrote the book nevertheless his application part of which is also included here is an important document The Guggenheim application not only reveals the outlines of Frye s thinking about literature it also uncovers his plans for his future creative life during the crucial period between his completion of Fearful Symmetry and his absorption in the writing of Anatomy of Criticism In addition to providing insight into Frye s thinking process the material collected into this key volume in the Collected Works is of particular importance because much of it has no direct counterpart in any of Frye s other published works
