Haruki Murakami and the Search for Self-Therapy Jonathan Dil, 2022-02-24 Haruki Murakami a global literary phenomenon has said that he started writing fiction as a means of self therapy What he has not discussed as much is what he needed self therapy for This book argues that by understanding more about why Murakami writes and by linking this with the question of how he writes readers can better understand what he writes Murakami's fiction in other words can be read as a search for self therapy In five chapters which explore Murakami's fourteen novels to date this book argues that there are four prominent therapeutic threads woven through Murakami's fiction that can be traced back to his personal traumas most notably Murakami's falling out with his late father and the death of a former girlfriend and which have also transcended them in significant ways as they have been transformed into literary fiction The first thread looks at the way melancholia must be worked through for mourning to occur and healing to happen the second thread looks at how symbolic acts of sacrifice can help to heal intergenerational trauma the third thread looks at the way people with avoidant attachment styles can begin to open themselves up to love again the fourth thread looks at how individuation can manifest as a response to nihilism Meticulously researched and written with sensitivity the result is a sophisticated exploration of Murakami's published novels as an evolving therapeutic project that will be of great value to all scholars of Japanese literature and culture to his early writing career are examined including The Second Bakery Attack The Elephant Vanishes and TV People Written in an easy style to read and with the content full of references to select contemporary popular culture and consumer products his fiction in general tends to invite criticism of irrelevance and frivolity Against their nonsensical even humorous appearance however the book's close analysis reveals his persistent concern with the plight of today's humanity in postindustrial reality Through the bewildering stories Murakami delivers a covert critique of aspects of the sociopolitical system including unbridled consumerism relentless pursuit of efficiency and electronic media saturation that brings people into total submission without their realization of the plight in which they are placed In this respect these short stories rival his acclaimed novels while showing his essential concerns and literary creativity more succinctly
