A Cultural History of Food in the Renaissance Ken Albala, 2014-05-22 Food and attitudes toward it were transformed in Renaissance Europe The period between 1300 and 1600 saw the discovery of the New World and the cultivation of new foodstuffs as well as the efflorescence of culinary literature in European courts and eventually in the popular press and most importantly the transformation of the economy on a global scale Food became the object of rigorous investigation among physicians theologians agronomists and even poets and artists Concern with eating was in fact central to the cultural dynamism we now recognize as the Renaissance A Cultural History of Food in the Renaissance presents an overview of the period with essays on food production food systems food security safety and crises food and politics eating out professional cooking kitchens and service work family and domesticity body and soul representations of food and developments in food production and consumption globally In the Kitchen, 1550-1800 Madeline Bassnett, Hillary Nunn, 2025-10-01 In the Kitchen insists that the preparation of food whether imaginative physical or spatial is central to a deeper understanding of early modern food cultures and practices Devoted to the arts of cooking and medicine early modern kitchens concentrated on producing processing and preserving materials necessary for nourishment and survival yet they also fed social and economic networks and nurtured a sense of physical spiritual and political connection to surrounding lands and their cultures The essays in this volume illuminate this expansive view of cooking and aspire to show how the kitchen's inner workings prove tightly though often invisibly interwoven with local national and increasingly global surroundings Engaging with literary and historical methodologies including close reading recipe analysis and perspectives on gender class race and colonialism we begin to develop a shared theoretical and practical language for the art of cooking that combines the physical with the intellectual the local with the global and the domestic with the political Seeds: Proceedings of the Oxford Symposium on Food and Cookery 2018 Mark McWilliams, 2019-07-01 This edited collection contains papers presented on the theme of Seeds at the 2018 Oxford Food Symposium Thirty six articles by forty one authors are included Beer and Brewing in Medieval Culture and Contemporary Medievalism John A. Geck, Rosemary O'Neill, Noelle Phillips, 2022-06-25 Beer and Brewing in Medieval Culture and Contemporary Medievalism is a cross cultural analysis of the role that alcohol consumption played in literature social and cultural history and gender roles in the Middle Ages The volume also seeks to correct or offer new insights into historical beer production By drawing on the expertise of scholars of history archaeology Old and Middle English Old Norse and Medieval and Early Modern literature the book shows how historical medieval beer and brewing has influenced nostalgic post medieval nationalism and romanticized visions of the medieval ale house seen in beer marketing today The essays describe alcohol consumption in the Middle Ages across much of Northern Europe engage with the various myths employed in modern craft beer advertising and beer production and examine how gender intersects with beer production and consumption The editors also raise certain critical questions about medievalisms which need to be interrogated particularly in light of the continued use of the Middle Ages for white supremacist and colonialist ideals The volume contributes to the study of the popular and historical understandings of the Middle Ages as well the issues of race and gender History and Material Culture Karen Harvey, 2013-02-01 Sources are the raw material of history but where the written word has traditionally been seen as the principal source today historians are increasingly recognizing the value of sources beyond text In History and Material Culture Karen Harvey embarks upon a discussion about material culture considering objects often those found surrounding us in day to day life as sources which can help historians develop new interpretations and new knowledge about the past Across ten chapters different historians look at a variety of material sources from around the globe and across centuries to assess how such sources can be used to study history While the sources are discussed from interdisciplinary perspectives each contributor examines how material culture can be approached from an historical viewpoint and each chapter addresses its theme or approach in a way accessible to readers without expertise in the area In her introduction Karen Harvey discusses some of the key issues raised when historians use material culture and suggests some basic steps for those new to these kinds of sources Opening up the discipline of history to new approaches and introducing those working in other disciplines to historical approaches this book is the ideal introduction to the opportunities and challenges of researching material culture History Peter Claus, John Marriott, 2014-01-14

Why should history students care about theory What relevance does it have to the proper role of the historian Historiography and historical theory are often perceived as complex subjects which many history students find frustrating and difficult Philosophical approaches postmodernism anthropology feminism or Marxism can seem arcane and abstract and students often struggle to apply these ideas in practice Starting from the premise that historical theory and historiography are fascinating and exciting topics to study Claus and Marriott guide the student through the various historical theories and approaches in a balanced comprehensive and engaging way Packed with intriguing anecdotes from all periods of history and supported by primary extracts from original historical writings History An Introduction to Theory Method and Practice is the student friendly text which demystifies the subject with clarity and verve Key features Written in a clear and witty way Presents a balanced view of the subject rather than the polemical view of one historian Comprehensive covers the whole range of topics taught on historiography and historical theory courses in suitable depth Full of examples from different historical approaches from social cultural and political history to gender economic and world history Covers a wide chronological breadth of examples from the ancient and medieval worlds to the twentieth century Shows how students can engage with the theories covered in each chapter and apply them to their own studies via the In Practice feature at the end of each chapter Includes Discussion Documents numerous extracts from the primary historiographical texts for students to read and reflect upon

Women and Contemporary Art in the Gulf Sabrina DeTurk, 2022-10-14 Women and Contemporary Art in the Gulf offers a unique focus on the roles of women in contemporary art cultural production and arts institutions in the Gulf Drawing on in person experiences of the art and sites discussed as well as research on regional artists and arts institutions DeTurk argues that the Gulf Cooperation Council GCC countries of Bahrain Kuwait Oman Qatar Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates have been largely excluded from the critical discourse about and display of contemporary Middle Eastern art The book addresses this oversight by providing an examination of the work of several contemporary women artists from the Gulf region DeTurk also discusses the role of women in museums and cultural institutions in the region as well as the education systems available to emerging women artists The discussion and analysis at the heart of the book connect to a range of larger themes including the visual culture of patriarchy connection to material culture and heritage religious beliefs trade and migration rapid development and the need to envision and create a post oil economy Women and Contemporary Art in the Gulf with its examination of the critical role women play in the formation of the cultural landscape of the Gulf is an important contribution to discourse around the changing role of the GCC It will be essential reading for scholars and students engaged in the study of art history visual culture museums and heritage and women and gender studies

Food and Health in Early Modern Europe David Gentilcore, 2015-11-19 CHOICE Outstanding

Academic Title 2016 Food and Health in Early Modern Europe is both a history of food practices and a history of the medical discourse about that food. It is also an exploration of the interaction between the two: the relationship between evolving foodways and shifting medical advice on what to eat in order to stay healthy. It provides the first in-depth study of printed dietary advice covering the entire early modern period from the late 15th century to the early 19th. It is also the first to trace the history of European foodways as seen through the prism of this advice. David Gentilcore offers a doctor's eye view of changing food and dietary fashions from Portugal to Poland, from Scotland to Sicily, not forgetting the expanding European populations of the New World. In addition to exploring European regimens throughout the period, works of materia medica, botany, agronomy, and horticulture are considered, as well as a range of other printed sources such as travel accounts, cookery books, and literary works. The book also includes 30 illustrations, maps, and extensive chapter bibliographies with web links included to further aid study. Food and Health in Early Modern Europe is the essential introduction to the relationship between food, health, and medicine for history students and scholars alike.
