Reducing Braking Distance by Control of Semi-Active Suspension Tobias Niemi, 2014-04-11 Inhaltsangabe Abstract This thesis presents a control algorithm for semi active suspensions to reduce the braking distance of passenger cars Active shock absorbers are controlled and used to influence the vertical dynamics during ABS controlled full braking In today's series cars the active shock absorbers are switched to a passive damping usually hard damping during ABS braking Several approaches to reduce oscillations of vertical dynamic tire forces are known implemented and some of them tested in non braking situations refer to Yi Val ek and Nouillant The approach presented in this paper goes a step further by connecting the vertical with the longitudinal dynamics To influence the vertical dynamics a switching control logic called MiniMax controller is used It is named after the fact that it changes only from soft to hard damping and vice versa A control quantity was identified that connects the vertical dynamics with the longitudinal dynamics the integral of dynamic wheel load The control algorithm is implemented in a compact class passenger car Simulations with a quarter car model have been undertaken as well as tests on a 4 post test rig driving tests with defined excitations like defined obstacles and test drives on a real road using a braking machine for reproducibility reasons It could be shown that it is possible to reduce the braking distance by affecting on the vertical dynamics of a passenger car in general The amount of reduction depends on the elevation profile of the chosen testing track and on the initial velocity On a road with an unevenness comparable to the one that is found on a typical German Autobahn a reduction of typically 1 2% compared to the best passive damping was achieved

Motivations Deciding is a very complex and difficult task Some people even argue that our ability to make decisions in complex situations is the main feature that distinguishes us from animals it is also common to say that laughing is the main difference Nevertheless when the task is too complex or the interests at stake are too important it quite often happens that we do not know or we are not sure what to decide and in many instances we resort to a decision support technique an informal one we toss a coin we ask an oracle we visit an astrologer we consult an expert we think or a formal one Although informal decision support techniques can be of interest in this book we will focus on formal ones Among the latter we find some well known decision support techniques cost benefit analysis multiple criteria decision analysis decision trees But there are many other ones sometimes not presented as decision support techniques that help making decisions Let us cite but a few examples When the director of a school must decide whether a given student will pass or fail he usually asks each teacher to assess the merits of the student by means of a grade The director then sums the grades and compares the result to a threshold When a bank must decide whether a given client will obtain a credit or not a technique called credit scoring is often used
