Hermann von Bertrab

Negotiating Nafta Negotiating Nafta:

Negotiating NAFTA Maryse Robert, 2000-01-01 Using case studies in four areas negotiated in the North American Free Trade Agreement Robert uses a theoretical framework to help explain the outcome of such negotiations in terms of structure and process

The Making of NAFTA Maxwell A. Cameron, Brian W. Tomlin, 2000 How exactly do countries negotiate major international agreements Until now reliably impartial accounts of how deals are made have been rare and usually describe only one side of a multiparty process Here Maxwell Cameron and Brian Tomlin provide the first full three country account of the negotiations surrounding the controversial North American Free Trade Agreement which went into effect on January 1 1994 Through extensive interviews with participants from all sides Cameron and Tomlin develop a detailed picture of the process by which the United States Mexico and Canada pursued closer economic relations and of the political realities that influenced the politicians and policymakers in each country Written in an engaging and accessible style The Making of NAFTA is a faithful account built on insider views of how the representatives of the three countries prepared for negotiated and implemented the agreement Cameron and Tomlin show how NAFTA was influenced by the personalities and the multiple sometimes conflicting objectives of the individuals involved They also explore what the negotiations can reveal more generally about the making of public policy and the importance of international negotiations

Negotiating NAFTA Hermann von Bertrab, 1997-11-25 This text examines the negotiations which led to the creation of the North American Free Trade Agreement NAFTA one of the most important between the United States and Mexico from the vantage point of one of the key Mexican officials Hermann von Bertrab

A Path Forward for NAFTA C. Fred Bergsten, Monica de Bolle, 2017-07-31 The North American Free Trade Agreement NAFTA ranks at the top of anyone's list of the most controversial trade deals of all time Reviled by critics as unfair and as a job destroyer praised by its defenders as having a documented record of success in spurring economic growth NAFTA reduced tariff barriers to zero for the United States Mexico and Canada and led to a tripling of trade among these three countries over the last 23 years The Peterson Institute for International Economics PIIE has abundantly detailed the many gains and acknowledged costs of NAFTA in numerous publications Now that President Donald Trump has launched a renegotiation of NAFTA having at least for the moment abandoned his 2016 campaign pledge to cancel the pact outright the fundamental question is Can such a renegotiation produce a positive result A broad range of experts who have contributed to this PIIE Briefing say yes The new negotiations can succeed only if they focus on how the agreement can be updated and upgraded however NAFTA can be modernized only if President Trump's zero sum America First agenda is replaced by one that seeks to benefit all three countries and improve their competitiveness in an increasingly competitive global economy Prioritizing American interests is of course essential in any US trade negotiation But an obsessive concern about bilateral trade balances and narrow special interests in the United States as opposed to broader national and regional interests would not only deadlock the negotiations but also likely lead to inferior outcomes for all three countries or even a breakdown in the talks and an abrogation of the agreement And walking away from NAFTA altogether would be disastrous for consumers producers and retailers in the United States As argued in several chapters of this Briefing abandoning NAFTA would degrade regional competitiveness and terminate jobs across North America undoing the integration achieved since the agreement's inception

The European window : challenges in the negotiation of México's free trade agreement with the European Union (Working Paper SITI = Documento de Trabajo IECI n. 9) Sergio Gómez Lora, 2004 On 1 July 2000 regulations to liberalize trade flows between Mexico and the European Union came into force after more than six years of diplomatic work and complex negotiations These regulations are part of the Tratado de Libre Comercio TLCUEM which is also one of the components of the Agreement on Economic Association Political Concertation and Cooperation Global Agreement The Global Agreement through its three components political dialogue trade liberalization and cooperation was at the time the most ambitious agreement ever constituted by the EU The economic association component included in the Global Agreement the TLCUEM was the first overseas free trade treaty and served as an important precedent for later EU negotiations with other Latin American countries The purpose of this essay is to analyze the reasons that led Mexico and the EU to the constitution of this treaty to describe the main challenges of the Global Agreement negotiations of different components and to briefly review the results of the first three years since the TLCUEM enforcement

The Political Economy of American Trade Policy Anne O. Krueger, 2007-12-01 Exploring the political and economic determinants of trade protection this study provides a wealth of information on key American industries and documents the process of seeking and conferring protection Eight analytical histories of the automobile steel semiconductor lumber wheat and textile and apparel industries demonstrate that trade barriers rarely have unequivocal benefits and may be counterproductive They show that criteria for awarding protection do not take into account the interests of consumers or other industries and that political influence and an organized lobby are major sources of protection Based on these findings a final essay suggests that current policy fails to consider adequately economic efficiency the public good and indirect negative effects This volume will interest scholars in economics business and public policy who deal with trade issues

Latin America Confronts the United States Tom Long, 2015-11-19 Latin America Confronts the United States offers a new perspective on US Latin America relations Drawing on research in six countries the book examines how Latin American leaders are able to overcome power asymmetries to influence US foreign policy The book provides in depth explorations of key moments in post World War II inter American relations foreign economic policy before the Alliance for Progress the negotiation of the Panama Canal Treaties the expansion of trade through the North American Free Trade Agreement and the growth of counternarcotics in Plan Colombia The new evidence challenges earlier US centric explanations of these momentous events Though differences in power were fundamental to each of these cases relative weakness did not prevent Latin American leaders from aggressively pursuing their interests vis vis the United States Drawing on studies of foreign policy and international relations the book examines how Latin American leaders achieved this influence and why they sometimes failed

Subregionalism and World Order Glenn D. Hook, Ian Kearns, 1999-08-31 Subregionalism and World Order brings together the work of a diverse range of area specialists in its treatment of sub regional cooperation schemes Sub regional projects covered include the Central European Free Trade Area the Black Sea Economic Scheme Ecowas in West Africa Mercosur The Association of Caribbean States Chilean strategies of subregional cooperation the Greater China project Asean and the East Asian Economic Caucus This is the first volume of its kind to embrace such a geographically diverse treatment of the subregional system Through comparison of the various schemes it also seeks to mount a case for a new IPE perspective in the understanding of subregional cooperation

The Domestic Politics of Negotiating International Trade Johanna von Braun, 2012-03-29 The Domestic Politics of International Trade considers the issues surrounding intellectual property rights in international trade negotiations in order to examine the challenges posed to domestic policy makers by the increasingly broad nature of Free Trade Agreements FTAs Throughout the book the author demonstrates the importance of domestic politics in understanding the nature and outcome of international negotiations particularly as they relate to international economic diplomacy The book looks in detail at the intellectual property negotiations which formed part of the US Peru and US Colombia Free Trade Agreements and analyses the extent to which public health authorities and other parties affected by the increased levels of intellectual property protection were integrated into the negotiation process The book then juxtaposes these findings with an analysis of the domestic origins of US negotiation objectives in the field of intellectual property paying particular attention to the role of the private sector in the development of these objectives Based on a substantial amount of empirical research including approximately 100 interviews with negotiators capital based policy makers private sector representatives and civil society organisations in Lima Bogot and Washington DC this book offers a rare account of different stakeholders perceptions of the FTA negotiation process Ultimately the book succeeds in integrating the study of domestic politics with that of international negotiations This book will be of particular interest to academics as well as practitioners and students in the fields of international law economic law intellectual property political economy international relations comparative politics and government Need for Renewal of Fast-track Trade Negotiating Authority United States.
