Nwea Cut Scores And Percentiles 2013 Nys:

Aligning the NWEA RIT Scale with the Maryland School Assessment (MSA) Branin Bowe, John Cronin, 2005

Recently NWEA completed a project to connect the scale of the Maryland School Assessment MSA with NWEA's RIT scale. One large school system participated in the study using test information from a group of over 24,000 students enrolled in third, fourth, and fifth grade who took both the MSA and NWEA reading tests in the spring of 2005. Information from these tests were used in a comprehensive study to identify the capacity of the RIT scale to predict success on the MSA and to identify performance level scores on the RIT scale that would indicate a good chance of success on this test. Three methodologies: linear regression, second order regression, and Rasch status on standards called Rasch SOS were used to derive estimates of cut scores. In each case the most accurate of the three estimates was used to arrive at the recommended cut score seen in this report. The authors estimated cut scores for each of the performance levels at grades three, four, and five for reading. Contains 2 figures and 4 tables.

Proficiency Guidance on New State Summative Assessments from NWEA. Northwest Evaluation Association, 2015. Measures of Academic Progress MAP computer adaptive interim assessments serve many purposes from informing instruction to identifying students for intervention to projecting proficiency on state accountability assessments. To make sure its flagship product does the latter, Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA) routinely conducts studies that provide estimates of how MAP RIT scores correspond to proficient and other performance levels on summative state accountability assessments. These studies provide schools and districts using MAP assessments with tools to predict whether students will demonstrate adequate reading and mathematics achievement on their state accountability assessments and allow them to adjust instructional plans accordingly. In recent months many school districts have requested that NWEA provide similar studies to estimate how MAP RIT scores correspond to college and career readiness as it will be measured by various tests. These include the two upcoming Common Core consortia tests: Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium Smarter Balanced and Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers PARCC, as well as other non-consortia tests aligned to the Common Core standards. To be clear, NWEA will conduct new studies. However, Smarter Balanced and PARCC have not yet finalized their proficiency level cut scores. Smarter Balanced did release preliminary threshold scale scores in November of 2014, but final cut score values will not be verified and adopted for either assessment until the summer of 2015. PARCC timeline Smarter Balanced timeline. This information is critical in conducting a linking study since students' observed scores on both tests are examined to understand how one test predicts performance on the other. While nobody currently knows what college and career readiness scores on PARCC will eventually be, we can make educated guesses and some states have already done so. New York, Illinois, and Kentucky have all implemented changes in their state proficiency benchmarks in anticipation of more rigorous standards. Furthermore, the preliminary threshold scale scores released by Smarter Balanced may provide additional insight into what college readiness might look like on PARCC once its performance standards have been set. These studies provide a preliminary indication of what college and career readiness may look like for MAP users in other states that align their tests to new standards. But the question remains: What can school districts that use MAP RIT scores do right now to understand whether students are on track to meet college and career readiness performance standards? One approach is to use cut scores that do currently exist from the New York, Illinois, and Kentucky tests or from the initial estimates for Smarter Balanced and relate them to MAP RIT cut scores. It is important to note that these state cut scores will not coincide precisely with the college and career readiness values that PARCC or other states will eventually adopt, but they may provide a guide during the interim. The tables and figures shown in the appendix may be used as rough guidelines. The values presented here simply represent an educated guess about what those benchmarks might look like, given that other assessments have defined college readiness similarly. As soon as the new cut scores and performance levels are finalized, NWEA will conduct studies that directly examine the ability of MAP to predict performance on those tests. Contained in the appendix are links used in this document.

Aligning the NWEA RIT Scale with the South Carolina High School Assessment Program John Cronin, 2004. Each year South Carolina students participate in testing as part of the South Carolina assessment program. Students in grades 3 through 8 take the Palmetto Achievement Challenge Tests (PACT) in English Language Arts and Mathematics. Students in grade 10 take the High School Assessment Program (HSAP) in English Language Arts and mathematics. These tests serve as an important measure of student achievement for the state's accountability system. Results from these assessments are used to make state-level decisions concerning education to meet Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) reporting requirements of the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) and to inform schools and school districts of their performance. In addition, students must achieve Level 2 performance on the HSAP in order to graduate from high school. The South Carolina Department of Education has developed scales that are used to assign students to one of four performance levels on the HSAP. Level 2 is considered the level that represents passing performance. Many students who attend school in South Carolina also take tests developed in cooperation with the Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA). These tests report student performance on a single cross-grade scale which NWEA calls the RIT scale. This study investigated the relationship between the scales used for the HSAP assessments and the RIT scales used to report performance on NWEA tests. The study determined the reading language usage and mathematics RIT score equivalents for the HSAP performance levels in English Language Arts and Mathematics. Test records for more than 3,500 students were included in this study. Three methods generated an estimate of RIT cut scores that could be used to project HSAP performance levels. Rasch SOS methods generally produced the most accurate cut score estimates. Accuracy of predicting HSAP passing performance was above 88% for all subjects when using the best methodology. Type I errors never ranged above 6% when the best methodology was employed. Contains 12 tables and figures.

Aligning the NWEA RIT Scale with the Maine Educational Assessments (MEA) John Cronin, 2004. Recently Northwest Evaluation

Association NWEA completed a project to connect the scale of the MEA with NWEA's RIT scale. Six Maine school systems participated in the study using test information from a group of over 800 students enrolled in fourth and eighth grade who took both the MEA and NWEA reading and mathematics tests in the spring of 2004. Information from these tests was used in a comprehensive study to identify the capacity of the RIT scale to predict success on the MEA and to identify performance level scores on the RIT scale that would indicate a good chance of success on this test. Three methodologies: linear regression, second order regression, and Rasch status on standards called Rasch SOS were used to derive estimates of cut scores. In each case the most accurate of the three estimates was used to arrive at the recommended cut score seen in this report. Cut scores were estimated for each of the performance levels at grades four and eight for reading and mathematics. Contains 4 tables and 2 figures.

The Relationship Between NWEA Scores of Resident and Non-resident Students Steve Prissel, 2016

The purpose of this study was to examine whether a relationship exists between the Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA) scores of school of choice students and resident students. Background factors were also considered in the study with focus on grade, gender, race, and special education, and socioeconomic status of the students. The study included 5,975 students from 14 school districts in one Michigan intermediate school district (ISD). The NWEA computer adaptive test assessed achievement progress in math and reading in grades 3-8. This study used pre and post assessments once in the fall and once in the spring to assess the level of achievement growth. Students in this study completed the math and reading portions of the NWEA during the 2014-15 school year. A quantitative correlational design was used in this study to show the relationship, if any, between NWEA math and reading scores of school of choice (SOC) and resident students. What was the relationship between students' residency status and math and reading achievement as measured by NWEA? What was the relationship between students' residency status and math and reading achievement as measured by NWEA after controlling for background factors? These guiding questions and this research are important because of growing nationwide concerns by parents, policy makers, and school leaders about the educational value of school choice and the competition for per pupil funding based on the school district's ability to attract and retain out-of-district students. Maintaining high achievement scores is critical. This study concluded that the grade level of the student was impactful to achievement scores, but the SOC status was not.

Aligning the NWEA RIT Scale with the California Standards Test (CST) John Cronin, 2004

Many students who attend school in California also take paper or computerized adaptive tests developed in cooperation with the Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA). These tests report student performance on a single cross-grade scale which NWEA calls the RIT scale. This scale was developed using Rasch scaling methodologies. RIT-based tests are used to inform a variety of educational decisions at the district, school, and classroom level. They are also used to monitor academic growth of students and cohorts. Districts choose whether to include these assessments in their local assessment programs. They are not state mandated. The versions of NWEA tests in use in California have been specifically aligned to match the content of local and California state curriculum.

standards Because of this it is believed there is a good match in content between the NWEA tests and the curriculum standards being used in California In order to use the two testing systems to support each other an alignment of the scores from the state and RIT based tests is as important as the curriculum alignment The current study is an expansion of a preliminary study of alignment of the California Standards Tests CST that was performed using data from one California school system in June 2003 It is one of an ongoing series of studies that are being conducted to identify the relationships between NWEA tests and state mandated assessments Studies of assessments in sixteen states have now been completed The primary questions addressed in this study are 1 To what extent do the same subject scores for the NWEA test correlate to the content similar subjects on the CST 2 What fall and spring RIT scores correspond to various performance levels on the CST tests and 3 How well can proficient performance on the California assessments be predicted from fall and spring RIT scores Contains 24 tables and 9 figures

NWEA FAQ Northwest Evaluation Association, 2015 Northwest Evaluation Association

NWEA conducts norming studies every several years to provide the best and most up to date information we can about student achievement and growth to better support educational decision making It is an important part of our commitment to our partners The most recent NWEA norms were released in July 2015 Just as we expect student performance to change with time norms of student performance will change correspondingly For 2015 several factors may have influenced how the US school age population performed on Measures of Academic Progress MAP assessments of language usage mathematics and reading over the 2011 12 2012 13 and 2013 14 school years Prominent among these possible factors are the introduction of Common Core instruction and Common Core versions of MAP But as with all empirical studies changes in scope and data necessitated changes in statistical design and analyses The methodological improvements introduced in the 2015 norms have resulted in a set of norms that are more representative of the US school age population than previous NWEA norms Methodological changes involved differences in the way post stratification weights were developed and the way growth was modeled Details of these changes are addressed more thoroughly in the 2015 Norms Study As a result of the improved methodology partners can expect some differences from previous norms as explained below
