

BATTLE OF THE BEAKS

Biology Practical—Beak adaptation

It is expected that the practical part of this task can be completed in 45–60 minutes. The activity is intended for the whole class, but you should work individually within the group. Discussion activities will depend on the time available. There are extension activities on the last page which you may like to try.

Your class will be provided with the following apparatus:

APPARATUS

- 7 pairs of scissors
- 7 teaspoons
- 7 pairs of fine tweezers
- 7 clothes pegs
- 28 plastic beakers or cups

MATERIALS

- large paperclips
- large rubber bands
- toothpicks
- macaroni (or other small pasta)
- marbles
- mini-marshmallows
- peas

The birds in this image are known as Darwin's finches, and are found only in the Galapagos Islands. They were first collected by Charles Darwin during his voyage on HMS Beagle. The birds have developed highly specialised beak shapes, depending on the food available on each island.

In any habitat, food is limited and the types of foods available can vary. Animals with variations allowing them to take advantage of available foods will be more likely to survive. We call beneficial inherited variations adaptations. Animals with the most helpful adaptations will be the most likely to live long enough to pass their genes on to the next generation.

In this activity you will simulate bird feeding by using a beak to collect food and place it into a stomach. There are four different beak shapes and a range of different food types to choose from.

This activity will allow you to explore the wide variety of beak types that can be seen within the bird population, as well as developing an understanding of the way in which beak shape is related to the available food sources within an environment.

Note: Remember that you are in a classroom and you should behave appropriately. As this activity simulates a competitive environment, you may get carried away—but remember that you are not actually a hungry bird!

New York State Beaks Finches Teacher Guide:

Designs for Science Literacy American Association for the Advancement of Science, 2001-03-22 The call for science curriculum reform has been made over and over again for much of the twentieth century Arguments have been made that the content of the curriculum is not appropriate for meeting the individual and social needs of people living in the modern world that the curriculum has become overstuffed with topics and does not serve students especially well and above all that the curriculum does not generate the student learning it is expected to produce The latest volume in a continuing series of publications from the AAAS designed to reform science education Designs for Science Literacy presupposes that curriculum reform must be considerably more extensive and fundamental than the tinkering with individual courses and subjects that has been going on for decades Designs deals with the critical issues involved in assembling sound instructional materials into a new coherent K 12 whole The book pays special attention to the need to link science oriented studies to the arts and humanities and also proposes how to align the curriculum with an established set of learning goals while preserving the American tradition of local responsibility for the curriculum itself If fundamental curriculum reform is ever to occur a new process for creating alternatives will have to be developed Designs for Science Literacy provides the groundwork for such a process
