Mind Fields Adolescent Consciousness In A Culture Of Distraction:

Mind Fields ,2005      Desire, Self, Mind, and the Psychotherapies R. Coleman Curtis,2009 Desire Self Mind and the Psychotherapies unifies psychological science with contemporary relational psychoanalysis arguing that the disciplines can be integrated if the concept of repression is understood as motivated forgetting creative aspects of unconscious processes are taken into account in cognitive science and a new experiences model of change is acknowledged by psychoanalysts Such a model of change allows for integration of behavioral cognitive visual and other techniques into a psychoanalytically informed psychotherapy This book will be of interest to mental health professionals psychoanalysts psychologists and psychotherapists      Mind Fields Thomas J. Cottle,2001 In Mind Fields Thomas J Cottle argues that the period known as adolescence is essentially a social construct influenced greatly by popular culture To understand young people therefore is to recognize how the very consciousness of adolescents is shaped by a culture dominated by the entertainment industry and the power of television and the computer constantly urging them to turn away from the normal evolution of their personal and social lives In this fundamentally distracting environment young people explore their consciousness sharing it with others as well as form their sense of identity all the while having these most inner experiences affected as much by the culture as by their own temperaments and personalities It is the culture that determines the forms of recognition and independence as well as intimacy and attachment that adolescents must learn In the end the author argues for the value of self reflection as a critical ingredient of identity formation and a fundamental antidote to distracting cultural influences      The Skillful Soul of the Psychotherapist George S. Stavros,Steven J. Sandage,2014-09-24 In The Skillful Soul of the Psychotherapist master clinicians reflect on their core spiritual values beliefs experiences and the role these play in psychotherapy Reflections by Nancy McWilliams David Wallin and Salman Akhtar are responded to by scholars representing a substantial range of psychological spiritual religious and theological perspectives The ensuing scholarly clinical dialogue advances the idea that a psychotherapist s formative spiritual experiences and core values both deeply influence and are simultaneously influenced by the therapeutic relationships and healing work that constitute his or her clinical practice Through this addressing of the interplay between these master clinicians inner wisdom and the therapeutic process readers will see demonstrated firsthand the vital importance of the psychotherapist s spiritual life for creative and effective clinical work This volume will also provide the opportunity for both experienced and training psychotherapists to enrich their own clinical practice via a more robust engagement in the points of contact and resonance that exist between their work with clients and their own unique spiritual lives and experiences      When the Music Stopped Thomas J. Cottle,2004-01-01 A son s coming to terms with his mother s decision to abandon her career as a concert pianist in order to raise her children      Intimate Appraisals Thomas J. Cottle,2002 An eminent sociologist offers insightful impressions and discussions of American culture and the ways it both liberates and imprisons various social groups      Drawing Life Thomas J. Cottle,2013-11-21 In Drawing Life Thomas J Cottle examines the ways people interpret their life experiences and construct meanings for the events they have encountered In this manner they discover their various identities and the essence of what we call the self In reading the sixteen life studies contained in this volume we encounter both inner reflections as well the power of culture to shape the meanings people give to their circumstances and the events that befall them The stories also reflect the role of human relationships and social institutions in defining our personal identities and sense of justice What makes us unique therefore is the personal story we tell as it reveals our constructions of the world and of ourselves The stories recounted in Drawing Life illuminate not only our past but also our perceptions of the present and our imaginings of the future In this way they become anthologies of our life experiences

Transitions Tania Zittoun, 2006-02-01 What do young people do with the novels they read the films they see the music they hear and sing How do these cultural products act as symbolic resources in the process of development And what can we as researchers learn by studying people's uses of fiction This monograph approaches development through the study of transitions and the processes of exploration that follow ruptures in people's lives Specifically it examines young people's symbolic responsibility as they have to choose among the wide range of cultural products societies exposes them to The book thus examines the books films and music that young people mobilize when they need to redefine their identity learn informal know how or have to confer meaning to what happens to them in transitions The book has a theoretical scope It draws on cultural psychology and psychoanalysis to formulate the importance of semiotic mediation in thinking feeling and acting Its main contribution is to propose a model for analyzing uses of symbolic resources such as books and films in everyday life It thus shows how uses of symbolic resources can enable new forms of experiences and conduct It finally highlights social and personal conditions that might facilitate or hinder developmental uses of symbolic resources The book based on in depth case studies is addressed to scholars professional and students in the fields of youth culture and the media cultural and developmental psychology and life long education

Beyond Self-esteem Thomas J. Cottle, 2003 In Beyond Self Esteem Thomas J Cottle argues that America's preoccupation with notions of self esteem and self regard not only does not reflect the fundamental nature of the self but leads to selfish behavior and an inability to devote one's self to friendships The self Cottle writes is predicated on social relationships and more specifically on the affirmation each of us offers to the other as well as the degree of responsibility we find ourselves willing to take for one another It is Cottle's contention reinforced by his theoretical positions and by the narrative accounts of children and adults alike that affirmation of and the assumption of responsibility for other people remain the most ethical human actions

The University of Chicago Magazine, 2002      A Sense of Self Thomas J. Cottle, 2003 A clinical psychologist as well as a sociologist Thomas J Cottle is the author of more than twenty five books At the heart of his work is a concern with the problems confronted by ordinary people in their everyday lives the kinds of issues that shape who we are and how we interact with the world around us In A Sense of Self his focus is on affirmation on that mysterious process by which the self comes to know itself in relation to others and forges an identity He pays particular attention to the role of devotion showing how the taking of responsibility for another is the essence of affirmation which in turn is the fundamental ingredient in the development of a self
