Design for Transport Mike Tovey, 2016-04-15 The central premise of Design for Transport is that the designer's role is to approach design for transport from the point of view of the user People have a collection of wants and needs and a significant proportion of them are to do with their requirements for mobility The authors show how creative designers can take a user focused approach for a wide range of types of transport products and systems In so doing their starting point is one of creative dissatisfaction with what is currently available and their specialist capability is in imagining and developing new solutions which respond to that opportunity How this is tackled varies depending on the context and the variety of solutions produced reflects the different aspirations and needs of the people they are designing for The chapters cover user needs and transport design and the transport system transport design case studies and the case for the automobile A conclusion briefly signals what the future for transport design might be Lavishly illustrated throughout in four colour Design for Transport is an imaginative and rigorous guide to how designers can take a user centred and socially responsible approach to tackling a range of types of transport from systems to products and from bicycles to automobiles demonstrating a rich array of solutions through case studies

Vincke, 2012-12-06 1 1 Motivations Deciding is a very complex and difficult task Some people even argue that our ability to make decisions in complex situations is the main feature that distinguishes us from animals it is also common to say that laughing is the main difference Nevertheless when the task is too complex or the interests at stake are too important it quite often happens that we do not know or we are not sure what to decide and in many instances we resort to a decision support technique an informal one we toss a coin we ask an oracle we visit an astrologer we consult an expert we think or a formal one Although informal decision support techniques can be of interest in this book we will focus on formal ones Among the latter we find some well known decision support techniques cost benefit analysis multiple criteria decision analysis decision trees But there are many other ones sometimes not presented as decision support techniques that help making decisions Let us cite but a few examples When the director of a school must decide whether a given student will pass or fail he usually asks each teacher to assess the merits of the student by means of a grade The director then sums the grades and compares the result to a threshold When a bank must decide whether a given client will obtain a credit or not a technique called credit scoring is often used
