Ur in the Twenty-First Century CE ,2021-01-25 The city of Ur now modern Tell el Muqayyar in southern Iraq also called Ur of the Chaldees in the Bible was one of the most important Sumerian cities in Mesopotamia during the Early Dynastic Period in the first half of the third millennium BCE The city is known for its impressive wealth and artistic achievements evidenced by the richly decorated objects found in the so called Royal Cemetery which was excavated by the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania from 1922 until 1934 Ur was also the cult center of the moon god and during the twenty first century BCE it was the capital of southern Mesopotamia With contributions from both established and rising Assyriologists from ten countries and edited by three leading scholars of Assyriology this volume presents thirty two essays based on papers delivered at the 62nd Rencontre Assyriologique Internationale held in Philadelphia in 2016 Reflecting on the theme Ur in the Twenty First Century CE the chapters deal with archaeological artistic cultural economic historical and textual matters connected to the ancient city of Ur Three of the chapters are based on plenary lectures by senior scholars Richard Zettler Jonathan Taylor and Katrien De Graef The remainder of the essays arranged alphabetically by author highlight innovative new directions for research and represent a diverse array of topics related to Ur in various periods of Mesopotamian history Tightly focused in theme yet broad in scope this collection will be of interest to Assyriologists and archaeologists working on Iraq

Science in Color Bettina Bock von Wülfigen,2019-08-19 Color makes its way into natural science images as early as the research process It serves for self reflection and for communication within the scientific community However color does not follow a standard in the natural sciences its meaning is contingent even though culturally conditioned Digital publishing enhances the use of color in scientific publications at the same time globalization promotes the idea of universal color symbolism This book investigates the function of color in historical and current visualizations for scientific purposes its epistemic role as a tool and its long neglect due to symbolic and gender specific connotations The publication thus closes a research gap in the natural sciences and the humanities

Babylonian Ceremonial Script in Its Scholarly Context Carole Roche-Hawley,2024-03-15 Since the advent of Assyriology in the early nineteenth century it has been known that two distinct scripts were used in ancient Mesopotamian inscriptions and documents One usefully characterized as cursive was used for the ephemeral documents of daily life as well as on most library and archival texts The other was a deliberately archaizing script reserved for ceremonial use This ceremonial script of Babylonian origin contained both archaic and archaizing signs and was in productive use for over two millennia not only in Babylonia but occasionally also in Assyria and beyond Yet to date there has been no systematic study devoted specifically to this ceremonial script nor any published syllabary of the archaic and archaizing signs it employs This volume attempts to rectify this deficiency by providing a substantive introduction to Babylonian ceremonial script along with a history of its modern study and several case studies of how the script was actually used The introduction is supplemented by an edition of the paleographic lists of the second and first millennia BCE which contain pedagogical inventories of the archaic and archaizing cuneiform signs illustrating how the ceremonial script was taught learned and transmitted in scholarly contexts

Prisons in Ancient Mesopotamia J. Nicholas Reid, 2022-05-05 Prisons in Ancient Mesopotamia explores the earliest historical evidence related to imprisonment in the history of the world While many historical investigations into prisons have revolved around the important question of punishment this work moves beyond that more narrow approach to consider the multifunctional practices of detaining the body in ancient Iraq It is the contention of this book that imprisonment arose out of the desire to control and detain the body in relation to labor The practice of detainment for coercion became adaptable to a variety of circumstances and goals which shaped the contexts and practices of imprisonment With time religious ideology was attached to imprisonment In one literary text a prisoner was refined like silver and given new birth in the prison The misery of imprisonment gave rise to lament through which a criminal could be ritually purified and restored to a right relationship with their personal god Beyond this literary perspective this work reconstructs how imprisonment and religious ideology intersected with the judicial process and explores the evidence related to the reasons behind imprisonment the treatment of prisoners and the evidence related to the lengths of their stays Dinámicas sociales y roles entre mujeres

Beatriz Noria-Serrano, 2023-07-13 Papers in this volume aim to reevaluate the importance of women as active and powerful social agents in the definition of ancient cultures their contribution to the economic and social development of the community and to the position reputation and prestige of their families Defining the Sacred Nicola Laneri, 2015-05-08 Religion is a phenomenon that is inseparable from human society It brings about a set of emotional ideological and practical elements that are pervasive in the social fabric of any society and characterizable by a number of features These include the establishment of intermediaries in the relationship between humans and the divine the construction of ceremonial places for worshipping the gods and practicing ritual performances and the creation ritual paraphernalia Investigating the religious dimensions of ancient societies encounters problems in defining such elements especially with regard to societies that lack textual evidences and has tended to lead towards the identification of differentiation between the mental dimension related to religious beliefs and the material one associated with religious practices resulting in a separation between scholars able to investigate and possibly reconstruct ritual practices i e archaeologists and those interested in defining the realm of ancient beliefs i e philologists and religious historians The aim of this collection of papers is to attempt to bridge these two dimensions by breaking down existing boundaries in order to form a more comprehensive vision of religion among ancient Near Eastern societies This approach requires that a higher consideration be given to those elements either artificial buildings objects texts etc or natural landscapes animals trees etc that are created through a materialization of religious beliefs and practices enacted by members of communities These issues are addressed in a series of specific case studies covering a broad chronological framework that from the Pre pottery Neolithic to the Iron Age Cover illustration German

Brigitte Lion, Cécile Michel, 2016-09-12 Economic history is well documented in Assyriology thanks to the preservation of dozens of thousands of clay tablets recording administrative operations contracts and acts dealing with family law Despite these voluminous sources the topic of work and the contribution of women have rarely been addressed This book examines occupations involving women over the course of three millennia of Near Eastern history It presents the various aspects of women as economic agents inside and outside of the family structure Inside the family women were the main actors in the production of goods necessary for everyday life In some instances their activities exceeded the simple needs of the household and were integrated within the production of large organizations or commercial channels The contributions presented in this volume are representative enough to address issues in various domains social economic religious etc from varied points of view archaeological historical sociological anthropological and with a gender perspective This book will be a useful tool for historians anthropologists archaeologists and graduate students interested in the economy of the ancient Near East and in women and gender studies Ebla Paolo Matthiae, 2020-09-21 In Ebla Paolo Matthiae presents the results of 47 years of excavations at this fascinating site providing a detailed account of Ebla s history and archaeology Ebla grew from a small Early Bronze Age settlement into an important trading and political centre which endured until its final destruction in c 1600 BC The destruction of its royal palace c 2300 BC was particularly significant as it preserved the city s rich archives offering a wealth of information on its history economy religion administration and daily life The discovery of Ebla is a pivotal moment in the history of archaeological investigations of the twentieth century and this book is the result of all the excavation campaigns at Tell Mardikh Ebla from 1964 until 2010 when field operations stopped due to the war in Syria Available for the first time in English Ebla offers a complete account of one of the largest pre classical urban centres by its discoverer making it an essential resource for students of Ancient Near Eastern archaeology and history

Textiles and Gender in Antiquity Mary Harlow, Cecile Michel, Louise Quillien, 2020-11-12 This volume looks at how the issues of textiles and gender intertwine across three millennia in antiquity and examines continuities and differences across time and space with surprising resonances for the modern world The interplay of gender identity textile production and use is notable on many levels from the question of who was involved in the transformation of raw materials into fabric at one end to the wearing of garments and the construction of identity at the other Textile production has often been considered to follow a linear trajectory from a domestic female activity to a more commercial or industrial male centred mode of production In reality many modes of production co existed and the making of textiles is not so easily grafted onto the labour of one sex or the other Similarly textiles once transformed into garments are often of unisex shape but worn to express the gender of the wearer As shown by the detailed textual source material and the rich illustrations in this volume dress and gender are intimately linked in the visual and written records of antiquity The contributors show how it is common practice in both art and literature not only to use particular garments to characterize one sex or the other but also to undermine characterizations by suggesting that they display features usually associated with the opposite gender The Early Bronze

Power Adam Fagbore,Nabhojeet Sen,Katherine Roscoe,2025-10-01 This volume draws the outlines of a new field of scholarship at the crossroads of the social histories of punishment and labour It poses key questions What is punishment and how is it legitimized In particular how do punitive practices contribute to shape the processes of labour extraction and workers mobility Based on empirically grounded research on a wide range of geographical and temporal contexts this volume provides important insights on these questions and on the ways through which they can be studied It highlights the need to pluralize both punishment and labour moving beyond the standard focus on incarceration and wage labour It invites to produce contextualized studies of the processes of coercion and the relations between multiple actors rather than starting from predefined categories of labour and punishment And it foregrounds the importance of the simultaneous analysis of processes of mobilization and immobilization of the workforce The Routledge Handbook of the Senses in the Ancient
