Namaste, Amanda Sturgill, 2023-07-03 There is growing awareness that global learning is not confined to university credit bearing off campus international programs and that institutions of higher learning have up until now conceived of global education too narrowly Global learning through study abroad and off campus domestic study fits into a larger context of students educational experiences You can find global learning as part of other high impact practices domestic off campus programs undergraduate research and service or community based learning all can be global learning opportunities On campus global learning can occur in the disciplines and in the core curriculum as well Language and culture anthropology sociology and other departments multicultural centers and diversity and inclusivity offices to name a few also teach students to be global learners Global learning pertains to the many staff and faculty educators who intentionally encourage students to engage with and successfully navigate difference Thus there is a growing need for bridging across disciplinary and administrative silos silos that are culturally bound within academia The gaps between these silos matter as students seek to integrate off and on campus learning Higher education needs a new holistic assessment of global learning This book investigates not just student learning but also faculty experiences program structures and pathways that impact global learning and expands the context of global learning to show its antecedents and impacts as a part of the larger higher education experience Chapters look at recent developments such as short term off campus international study and certificate medallion programs as well as blended learning environments and undergraduate research all in the context of multi institutional comparisons Global learning is also situated in a larger university context A Series on Engaged Learning and Teaching Book Visit the books companion website hosted by the Center for Engaged Learning for book resources

Mind The Gap Peter Wilson, 2014-06-03 We rarely speak or even write in the complete sentences that are often held to be the ideal form of linguistic communication Language is in fact full of gaps because speakers and writers operate in contexts which allow bits of language to be understood rather than expressed This book systematically analyses this inherent gappiness of language known as ellipsis and provides an account of the different contexts both linguistic and situational which affect its use Peter Wilson draws on a wide variety of examples of spoken and written English and both literary and non literary to present a comprehensive classification of elliptical language that ranges from the conversational fragment and the advertisement to the dialogue of Shakespeare and imagist poetry Mind the Gap shows how ellipsis is a feature of major structural and stylistic importance to our understanding of spoken and written language and will be of interest to undergraduate students of linguistics literature communication and the interrelations between them Mind the Gap! Gail Davidson, Julia Grey, Ren   Ferreira, South Africa. South African Schooling: The Enigma of Inequality Nic Spaull, Jonathan D. Jansen, 2019-11-05 This volume brings together many of South Africa s leading scholars of education and covers the full range of South African schooling from financing and policy reform to in depth discussions of literacy numeracy teacher development and curriculum change The book moves beyond a historical analysis and provides an inside view of the questions South African scholars are now grappling with Are there different and preferential equilibria we have not yet thought of or explored and if so what are they In practical terms how does one get to a more equitable distribution of teachers resources and learning outcomes While decidedly local these questions resonate throughout the developing world South Africa today is the most unequal country in the world The richest 10% of South Africans lay claim to 65% of national income and 90% of national wealth This is the largest 90 10 gap in the world and one that is reflected in the schooling system Two decades after apartheid it is still the case that the life chances of most South African children are determined not by their ability or the result of hard work and determination but instead by the colour of their skin the province of their birth and the wealth of their parents Looking back on almost three decades of democracy in South Africa it is this stubbornness of inequality and its patterns of persistence that demands explanation justification and analysis This is a landmark book on basic education in South Africa an essential volume for those interested in learning outcomes and their inequality in South Africa The various chapters present conceptually and empirically sophisticated analyses of learning outcomes across divisions of race class and place The book brings together the wealth of decades of research output from top quality researchers to explore what has improved what has not and why Prof Lant Pritchett Harvard University There is much wisdom in this collection from many of the best education analysts in South Africa No surprise that they conclude that without a large and sustained expansion in well trained teachers early childhood education and adequate school resources South Africa will continue to sacrifice its people s future to maintaining the privileges of the few Prof Martin Carnoy Stanford University Altogether one can derive from this very valuable volume if not an exact blueprint for the future then certainly at least a crucial and evidence based itinerary for the next few steps Dr Luis Crouch RTI
