Bringing together the most popular genres of the 21st century this book argues that Americans have entered a new era of narrative dominated by the fear and wish fulfillment of the breakdown of authority and terror itself Bringing together disparate and popular genres of the 21st century American Popular Culture in the Era of Terror Falling Skies Dark Knights Rising and Collapsing Cultures argues that popular culture has been preoccupied by fantasies and narratives dominated by the anxiety and strangely the wish fulfillment that comes from the breakdowns of morality family law and order and storytelling itself From aging superheroes to young adult dystopias heroic killers to lustrous vampires the figures of our fiction film and television again and again reveal and revel in the imagery of terror Kavadlo's single author thesis driven book makes the case that many of the novels and films about September 11 2001 have been about much more than terrorism alone while popular stories that may not seem related to September 11 are deeply connected to it The book examines New York novels written in response to September 11 along with the anti heroes of television and the resurgence of zombies and vampires in film and fiction to draw a correlation between Kavadlo's Era of Terror and the events of September 11 2001 Geared toward college students graduate students and academics interested in popular culture the book connects multiple topics to appeal to a wide audience Selling the Silver Bullet Avi Santo, 2015-04-15 Originating as a radio series in 1933 the Lone Ranger is a cross media star who has appeared in comic strips comic books adult and juvenile novels feature films and serials clothing games toys home furnishings and many other consumer products In his prime he rivaled Mickey Mouse as one of the most successfully licensed and merchandised children's properties in the United States while in more recent decades the Lone Ranger has struggled to resonate with consumers leading to efforts to rebrand the property The Lone Ranger's eighty year history as a lifestyle brand thus offers a perfect case study of how the fields of licensing merchandizing and brand management have operated within shifting industrial and sociohistorical conditions that continue to redefine how the business of entertainment functions Deciphering how iconic characters gain and retain their status as cultural commodities Selling the Silver Bullet focuses on the work done by peripheral consumer product and licensing divisions in selectively extending the characters reach and in cultivating investment in these characters among potential stakeholders Tracing the Lone Ranger's decades long career as intellectual property allows Avi Santo to analyze the mechanisms that drive contemporary character licensing and entertainment brand management practices while at the same time situating the licensing field's development within particular sociohistorical and industrial contexts. He also offers a nuanced assessment of the ways that character licensing firms and consumer product divisions have responded to changing cultural and economic conditions over the past eighty years which will alter perceptions about the creative and managerial authority these ancillary units wield. Margaret Mead Nancy C. Lutkehaus, 2010-10-03 Using photographs, films, television appearances and materials from newspapers, magazines and scholarly journals, this text explores the ways in which Margaret Mead became an American cultural heroine.

An Analysis of Elaine Tyler May's Homeward Bound Jarrod Homer, 2017-07-05 Elaine Tyler May's 1988 Homeward Bound: American Families in the Cold War Era is a ground-breaking piece of historical and cultural analysis that uses its findings to build a strong argument for its author's view of the course of modern US history. The aim of May's study is to trace the links between Cold War politics and the domestic lives of everyday American families at the time. Historians have long noted the unique domestic trends of 1950s America with its increased focus on the nuclear family, neatly divided traditional gender roles and aspirational suburban consumer lifestyles. May's contribution was to analyse the interplay between the domestic scene and the political ideologies of American government and then to build a carefully constructed argument that draws attention to the ways in which these seemingly disparate forces are in fact related. May's key achievement was to use her analytical skills to understand the relationships between these different factors. She traced ways in which domestic life and US foreign policy mirrored one another, showing that the structures and processes they aimed for, while different in scale, were essentially the same. She then carefully brought together different types of historical data, organizing her study to produce a carefully reasoned argument that the American suburban home was in certain direct ways the product of the containment policies that ruled American foreign policy at the time.

The Anti-Hero in the American Novel D. Simmons, 2008-05-26 The Anti Hero in the American Novel rereads major texts of the 1960s to offer an innovative re-evaluation of a set of canonical novels that moves beyond entrenched post-modern and post-structural interpretations towards an appraisal which emphasizes the specifically humanist and idealist elements of these works.

Popular Culture in the Age of White Flight Eric Avila, 2006-04

In Popular Culture in the Age of White Flight, Eric Avila offers a unique argument about the restructuring of urban space in the two decades following World War II and the role played by new suburban spaces in dramatically transforming the political culture of the United States. Avila's work helps us see how and why the postwar suburb produced the political culture of balanced budget conservatism that is now the dominant force in politics, how the eclipse of the New Deal since the 1970s represents not only a change of views but also an alteration of spaces George Lipsitz author of The Possessive Investment in Whiteness “All-Electric” Narratives Rachele Dini, 2021-10-07 Winner of the 2023 Emily Toth Award for Best Single Work in Women’s Studies All Electric Narratives is the first in depth study of time saving electrical appliances in American literature It examines the literary depiction of refrigerators vacuum cleaners oven ranges washing machines dryers dishwashers toasters blenders standing and hand held mixers and microwave ovens between 1945 when the all electric home came to be associated with the nation’s hard won victory and 2020 as contemporary writers consider the enduring material and spiritual effects of these objects in the 21st century The appropriation and subversion of the rhetoric of domestic electrification and time saving comprises a crucial but overlooked element in 20th century literary forms and genres including Beat literature Black American literature second wave feminist fiction science fiction and postmodernist fiction Through close readings of dozens of literary texts alongside print and television ads from this period Dini shows how U S writers have unearthed the paradoxes inherent to claims of appliances capacity to give back time to their user transport them into a technologically progressive future or return them to some pastoral past In so doing she reveals literary appliances role in raising questions about gender norms and sexuality racial exclusion and erasure class anxieties the ramifications of mechanization the perils and possibilities of conformity the limitations of patriotism and the inevitable fallacy of utopian thinking while both shaping and radically disrupting the literary forms in which they operated
