Gorilla Pathology and Health John E Cooper, Gordon Hull, 2016-12-21 Gorilla Pathology and Health With a Catalogue of Preserved Materials consists of two cross referenced parts The first the book itself is a review of pathological changes and tissue responses in gorillas Gorilla gorilla and G beringei with an emphasis on free living animals but also with reference to those in captivity The comparative aspects are discussed stressing the relevance of research to both gorillas and humans What makes the publication truly unique however is the second part a comprehensive descriptive catalogue of the location and nature of gorilla material in museums and scientific institutions throughout the world This is of great consequence because free living gorillas are strictly conserved with restricted access so the location of a wealth of preserved tissues and other material that has been collected over the decades is a great benefit for research and study This book can and should be used to gain cardinal knowledge regarding the biology and pathology of this genus The combination of book and catalogue in this extensive compilation makes it an invaluable tool for all those concerned with the health welfare and conservation of gorillas one of our nearest living relatives Brings together studies data and clinical practice from difficult to access or obscure journals and NGO reports in different languages for all interested parties and practitioners Provides perspectives on existing research in gorilla pathology both for those studying conservation practices and those seeking an understanding of comparable diseases in humans Includes illustrative figures on gross and microscopic pathological changes museum specimens photos of field necropsy and techniques and examples of laboratory tests Features an extensive list of references and further reading in different languages Incorporates a comprehensive descriptive catalogue of gorilla material from around the world

Zucker,2012-12-06 It has been said that never in the history of human progress has a better and cheaper method of preventing illness been developed than immunization This is well illustrated by the WHO Expanded Programme on Immunization EPI which in developing countries is now preventing nearly a million deaths annually from measles pertussis and neonatal tetanus and for which there is a commitment by the WHO and UNICEF to protect all children by immunization by the end of the decade This enormous undertaking will be facilitated by the rapid advances in molecular biology and recombinant DNA technology in the understanding of immunological mechanisms and by the production and application of monoclonal antibodies so that the structure and location of important antigenic determinants or epitopes can be determined Chemical synthesis of oligopeptides has been simplified and computer programmes and X ray crystallography provide the tools for the determination of three dimensional structure of proteins so that the structure and location of important antigenic determinants or epitopes can be predicted These techniques have opened the way to the improvement of existing vaccines and to the development and production of new vaccines against infections for which vaccines are not available New vaccines under development include vaccines against hepatitis B hepatitis A malaria vaccines for typhoid cholera rota virus infection and other diarrhoeal diseases leprosy rabies the acquired immune deficiency syndrome AIDS rubella EB virus schistosomiasis and other infections These recent developments are discussed in the volume by internationally recognized experts assembled from several countries
