The Imperfect City: On Architectural Judgment Samir Younes, 2016-03-03 If architectural judgment were a city a city of ideas and forms then it is a very imperfect city When architects judge the success or failure of a building the range of ways and criteria which can be used for this evaluation causes many contentious and discordant arguments Proposing that the increase in number and intensity of such arguments threatens to destabilize the very grounds upon which judgment is supposed to rest this book examines architectural judgment in its historical cultural political and psychological dimensions and their convergence on that most expressive part of architecture namely architectural character It stresses the value of reasoned judgment in justifying architectural form a judgment based on three sets of criteria those criteria that are external to architecture those that are internal to architecture and those that pertain to the psychology of the architect as image maker External criteria include philosophies of history or theories of modernity internal criteria include architectural character and architectural composition while the psychological criteria pertain to mimetic rivalry or rivaling desires for the same architectural forms Yet although architectural conflicts can adversely influence judgment they can at the same time contribute to the advancement of architectural culture
