Operational Risk Control With Basel II:

Operational Risk Control with Basel II Dimitris N. Chorafas, 2003-10-06 Operational Risk Control with Basel II provides a sound methodology for operational risk control and focuses on management risk and ways to avoid it. The book explains why and how information technology is a major operational risk and shows how to integrate cost control in the operational risk perspective. It also details analytical approaches to operational risk control to help with scorecard developments, explains the distinction between High Frequency Low Risk and Low Frequency High Risk events and provides many case studies from banking and insurance to demonstrate the attention operational risks deserve. Assists risk professionals in preparing their institution to comply with the New Capital Adequacy Framework issued by the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision which becomes mandatory from January 1 2006. Readers benefit from a significantly broader viewpoint on types of operational risks, operational risks controls and results to be expected from operational risk management compared to what the reader may gain from books previously published on this same topic. Chorafas, 2011-04-08 The Consultative paper issued by the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision. Basel II cites the failure of bankers to adequately stress test exposures as a major reason for bad loans. Sample quotes from this crucial document: Banks should take into consideration potential future changes in economic conditions when assessing individual credits and their credit portfolios and should assess their credit risk exposures under stressful conditions. The recent disturbances in Asia and Russia illustrate how close linkages among emerging markets under stress conditions and previously undetected correlations between market and credit risks as well as between those risks and liquidity risk can produce widespread losses. Effective stress testing which takes account of business or product cycle effects is one approach to incorporating into credit decisions a fuller understanding of a borrower's credit risk. Written for professionals in financial services with responsibility for IT and risk measurement management and modeling, Dimitris Chorafas explains in clear language the testing methodology necessary for risk control to meet Basel II requirements. Stress testing is the core focus of the book, covering stress analysis and the use of scenarios, models, drills, benchmarking, backtesting and post mortems, creditworthiness, wrong way risk and statistical inference, probability of default, loss given default and exposure at default, stress testing, expected losses, correlation coefficients and unexpected losses, stress testing related to market discipline and control action, and pillars 2 and 3 of Basel II. Written in clear, straightforward style with numerous practical examples. Based on five years of development and research. Focuses on stress, probability of default, stress loss given default, stress exposure at default.

Operational Risk. The Regulatory Requirements and Management Process Elvira Peters, 2016-06-03. Project Report from the year 2015 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 2.0 University of Kassel language English abstract. During the last twenty years, operational risk has gained in importance in the financial sector. Although this type of risk is definitely not new but rather one of the oldest, it has remained unconsidered for a relatively long time. However, operational risks have always existed and do exist in the daily business ever since the foundation of every financial institution. Considering the increased complexity and global developments in the financial system as well as the recent extremely large losses caused by operational risk, this risk type has finally acquired a greater relevance. One of the most popular examples for the tremendous losses caused by operational risk is the collapse of the Barings Bank in the year 1995 due to an inadequate control system and serious failures in management and supervisory. Unlike other types of risks, operational risks are very heterogeneous and diversified. The term includes a variety of meanings and range from employee errors, systems failures and frauds up to external events such as fire or floods. Therefore, the former definition of operational risk was a negative one which stated what the term is not, e.g. credit market or liquidity risk; it was the other risks basket. Utz 2006: 52. But this definition has proven to be opaque and less than useful. Carol 2003: 104 and is now obsolete. Since a consistent definition is absolutely necessary for a general framework for managing and controlling operational risks, the Basel Committee provided a more precise definition. It defines the operational risk as the risk of direct or indirect loss resulting from inadequate or failed internal processes, people and systems or from external events. BCBS 2001: 2. This definition includes also the legal risk but not the reputation risk and strategic risk. A lot of industry representatives applied this definition, hence it can now be assumed as the standard one. According to this definition, the operational risk can be divided into two main streams of risk: the external and the internal risk. The internal risk arises inside the institution, whereas the external risk arises outside the institution.
