It is surrounded by several hands of various skin tones (light, medium, and dark brown) reaching in from the edges, cupping the globe together. The hands are positioned as if they are supporting or holding the planet. Overlaid on the globe is the title text in white. The title is in a bold, sans-serif font. Below the title, the subtitle is in a smaller, italicized font. The author's name is at the bottom of the text block, enclosed in a light blue rectangular box. In the bottom right corner, there is a small, white, stylized logo that looks like a star or a flower with multiple points.

Revisiting Metaphors in International Relations Theory Michael P. Marks, 2018-01-08 This book presents an analysis of how metaphors are essential elements in the study of international relations It acknowledges the fact that theory and practice in international relations often rest on common metaphorical concepts which have implications for the ways people around the world pursue their lives Because of the increased attention metaphors have received as integral elements in political discourse there is a need to investigate metaphorical concepts that are not neutral in their implications for understanding international relations Inasmuch as government policy is shaped by metaphorical concepts that originate in the academic realm and given that scholarly works are therefore partially involved in inspiring policy the author subjects a range of metaphors in international relations theory to critical interrogation

Shape-Shifting Capital George González, 2015-05-20 Shape Shifting Capital Spiritual Management Critical Theory and the Ethnographic Project is positioned at the intersection of anthropology critical theory and philosophy of religion First Gonz lez explores the phenomena of workplace spirituality in a language that is accessible to a general readership Taking contemporary trends in organizational management as a case study he argues by way of a detailed ethnographic study of practitioners of workplace spirituality that the conceptual and institutional boundaries between religion science and capitalism are being redrawn by theologized management appropriations of tropes borrowed from creativity theory and quantum mechanics Second Gonz lez makes a case for a critical anthropology of religion that combines existential concerns for biography and intentionality with poststructuralist concerns for power arguing that the ways in which the personalization of metaphor bridges personal and social histories also helps bring about broader epistemic shifts in society Finally in a postsecular age in which capitalism itself is explicitly and confidently spiritual Gonz lez suggests that it is imperative to reorient our critical energies towards a present day evaluation of postmodern capitalism s boundary blurring Gonz lez further argues that the kind of existential deconstruction performed by what he calls existential archeology can serve the needs of any social criticism of neoliberal religion and corporate spirituality
