Feminism and Modernity in Anglophone African Women's Writing Dobrota Pucherová, 2022-07-29 This book re reads the last 60 years of Anglophone African women s writing from a transnational and trans historical feminist perspective rather than postcolonial from which these texts have been traditionally interpreted Such a comparative frame throws into relief patterns across time and space that make it possible to situate this writing as an integral part of women s literary history Revisiting this literature in a comparative context with Western women writers since the 18th century the author highlights how invocations of tradition have been used by patriarchy everywhere to subjugate women the similarities between women s struggles worldwide and the feminist imagination it produced The author argues that in the 21st century African feminism has undergone a major epistemic shift from a culturally exclusive to a relational feminism that conceptualizes African femininity through the risky opening of oneself to otherness transculturation and translation Like Western feminists in the 1960s contemporary African women writers are turning their attention to the female body as the prime site of women s oppression and freedom reframing feminism as a demand for universal human rights and actively shaping global discourses on gender modernity and democracy The book will be of interest to students and researchers of African literature but also feminist literary scholars and comparatists more generally Women in Africa Toyin Falola, Olajumoke

Paper Sons and Daughters Ufrieda Ho,2012-07-04 Ufrieda Ho s compelling memoir describes with intimate detail what it was like to come of age in the marginalized Chinese community of Johannesburg during the apartheid era of the 1970s and 1980s The Chinese were mostly ignored as Ho describes it relegated to certain neighborhoods and certain jobs living in a kind of gray zone between the blacks and the whites As long as they adhered to these rules they were left alone Ho describes the separate journeys her parents took before they knew one another each leaving China and Hong Kong around the early 1960s arriving in South Africa as illegal immigrants Her father eventually became a so called fahfee man running a small time numbers game in the black townships one of the few opportunities available to him at that time In loving detail Ho describes her father s work habits the often mysterious selection of numbers at the kitchen table the carefully kept account ledgers and especially the daily drives into the townships where he conducted business on street corners from the seat of his car Sometimes Ufrieda accompanied him on these township visits offering her an illuminating perspective into a stratified society Poignantly it was on such a visit that her father who is very much a central figure in Ho s memoir met with a tragic end In many ways life for the Chinese in South Africa was self contained Working hard minding the rules and avoiding confrontations they were able to follow traditional Chinese ways But for Ufrieda who was born in South Africa influences from the surrounding culture crept into her life as did a political awakening Paper Sons and Daughters is a wonderfully told family history that will resonate with anyone having an interest in the experiences of Chinese immigrants or perhaps any immigrants the world over Mobility, Agency, Kinship Lea Espinoza Garrido,Carolyn Gebauer,Julia Wewior,2024-08-22

This volume offers new perspectives on the ways in which migrants use storytelling practices and kinship formations in order to navigate and modify spaces of sovereignty and thus to re write narratives portraying them as helpless and passive victims It provides one of the first investigations that assembles multidisciplinary contributions to look beyond individual acts of migrant agency and toward the entanglements of individual and collective agency formations of kinship structures and feelings expressions and representations of community and multiple belonging s The contributions explore the interplay between agency kinship and migration from various fields including sociology psychology philosophy border studies gender and queer studies postcolonial studies ecocriticism film and media studies and literary and cultural studies with a special focus on interdisciplinary narrative theory They address real and imagined assertions of migrant agency and kinship formations draw on empirical research interviews and accounts of lived experiences and analyze the role of narrative media and technologies in artistic literary and cinematic representations of migrant agency and kinship By probing migrant identity discourses in different cultural and medial contexts the contributions examine how narratives negotiate and challenge the unequal distribution of mobility resources and vulnerability that preconfigures many migrant lives they also discuss narrative devices storytelling techniques and other representational strategies that migrants employ as well as technologies that they draw on to lay powerful claims on space and citizenship and to eschew established scripts of victimhood As such the volume addresses and embraces the tensions between vulnerability and agency that come to the fore when we try to understand the different ways in which migrants shape and are shaped by their trans local material economic affective social cultural and political realities
