oversight and have not been tested with rigorous trials designed to determine their safety and likely benefits In the absence of substantiated claims the potential for harm to patients as well as to the field of stem cell research in general may outweigh the potential benefits To explore these issues the Institute of Medicine the National Academy of Sciences and the International Society for Stem Cell Research held a workshop in November 2013 Stem Cell Therapies summarizes the workshop Researchers clinicians patients policy makers and others from North America Europe and Asia met to examine the global pattern of treatments and products being offered the range of patient experiences and options to maximize the well being of patients either by protecting them from treatments that are dangerous or ineffective or by steering them toward treatments that are effective This report discusses the current environment in which patients are receiving unregulated stem cell offerings focusing on the treatments being offered and their risks and benefits The report considers the evidence base for clinical application of stem cell technologies and ways to assure the quality of stem cell offerings Healthcare
