

Strings

The Nut

String Guide

Machine Heads Six machine heads aligned in a staggered row – achieving a straight string path – important for stability especially when using vibrato. The iconic headstock has varied, but in the early 21st century the classic has returned. See Specific case studies on page 104.

Trem Rod An alloy of metal (steel and brass) that does this work: the neck is bent, it allows adjustment to compensate for the extra strain of metal strings – the guitar ‘settles down’ (as string) until the early years of the 21st century. The trem rod is not a rod and does not have a fixed position. See Specific case studies on page 104.

Position Markers

Neck A one piece removable neck – classically with an integrated maple fingerboard – many Strats now have conventional rosewood fingerboards which are not just harder wearing but also have an effect on the sound – many players insist on the original formula. The 6 string version means a ‘belted’ can take an hour (not 3 days) (see page 104). The original 21 frets are now often augmented to 22.

Metal Frets

Pickup Covers

Pickups These single but effective single coil pickups revolutionised the sound of the electric guitar and set the stage for Rock ‘n’ Roll. A pickup update is simple (see page 104).

Pickguard Though shown here as components – virtually all the electronics can be removed as one piece for simply mounting the pickups. The majority of Strats and Telecasters have 1950s style electronics.

Volume and Tone Switches

Pickup Selector One accessible three-way switch for instant changes of tone colour. Now most commonly a five-way switch and sometimes augmented with FSR, SRD, ‘Delta tone’ and ‘51 switching’. See Specific case studies starting on page 104.
