policy He argues that the US and Israel have both internalized deterrence ideas and become attached to these practices For them deterrence is not just a means to advance physical security but it constitutes their very selves as deterring actors As a result being unable to deter becomes a threat to their identity evoking strong emotional responses In recognizing these dynamics the book provides a fresh perspective on the US war in Iraq 2003 and the Israeli war in Lebanon 2006 both of which can be seen as attempts to repair each country s shaken sense of self

Disability Justice in Public Health Emergencies Joel Michael Reynolds, Mercer E. Gary, 2024-11-25 Disability Justice in Public Health Emergencies is the first book to highlight contributions from critical disability scholarship to the fields of public health ethics and disaster ethics It takes up such contributions with the aim of charting a path forward for clinicians bioethicists public health experts and anyone involved in emergency planning to better care for disabled people and thereby for all people in the future Across 11 chapters the contributors detail how existing public health emergency responses have failed and still fail to address the multifaceted needs of disabled people They analyze complications in the context of epidemic and pandemic disease and emphasize that vulnerabilities imposed upon disabled people track and foster patterns of racial and class domination The central claim of the volume is that the ethical and political insights of disability theory and activism provide key resources for equitable disaster planning for all The volume builds upon the existing efforts of disability communities to articulate emergency planning priorities and response measures that take into account the large body of qualitative and quantitative research on disabled people s health needs and experiences It is only by listening to disabled people s voices that we will all fare better in future public health emergencies The book will be of interest to scholars and graduate students working in bioethics disability studies public health policy medical sociology and the medical humanities
