sociedad global lingüísticamente diversa donde la comunicación se está convirtiendo en una vía indispensable de comunicación todavía sigue habiendo barreras comunicativas y retos específicos para crear una comunicación basada en la inclusión y nuestro fin es ahondar en todos ellos. Hablemos de inclusión es una obra plural que plantea nuevos interrogantes en torno a los retos comunicativos que nos lleven hacia un escenario social y educativo más inclusivo. Los autores de los capítulos son referentes en inclusión social, educación y comunicación y desde su experiencia reflexionan e investigan han contribuido a otorgar un gran valor añadido a este libro. En definitiva tenemos entre manos un manual básico para investigadores y profesionales así como para representantes de organismos institucionales y educativos que trabajan con el objetivo de superar las barreras comunicativas con la inclusión social y educativa como telón de fondo.

Del otro lado del tiempo

Carlos Martínez Assad, Fernando López Aguilar, 2019. The photographs that make up the corpus of the book come from years of individual and shared works by photographers Ahumada Maawad and now in this edition they see the light together which makes it a substantial importance for its presence in the editorial and photographic space. This is because they are unusual images little known and of great significance for the history of the Mezquital Valley region and even more for our national history. The texts of Carlos Martínez Assad and Fernando López Aguilar describe how they have worked from different literary, photographic and anthropological historical sources the place and its entrails and show the possibilities that its inhabitants have had from a historical recovery from ancient times to the little government interest that has failed to fully provide the minimum adequate irrigation to the region. By walking this path the researchers allow reading the photographs recovering the visibility of that desert area and its characters that have a rugged and intense source of life in their daily survival tasks.
