The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2006 An Ethnographic Approach to Peacebuilding Gearoid Millar, 2014-04-24 This book aims to outline and promote an ethnographic approach to evaluating international peacebuilding interventions in transitional states While the evaluation of peacebuilding and transitional justice efforts has been a growing concern in recent years too often evaluations assess projects based on locally irrelevant measures reinforce the status quo distribution of power in transitional situations and uncritically accept the implicit conceptions of the funders planners and administrators of such projects This book argues that evaluating the effects of peacebuilding interventions demands an understanding of the local and culturally variable context of intervention Throughout the book the author draws on real world examples from extensive fieldwork in Sierra Leone to argue that local experiences should be considered the primary measure of a peacebuilding project s success An ethnographic approach recognizes diversity in conceptions of peace justice development and reconciliation and takes local approaches and local critiques of the international agenda seriously It can help to empower local actors hold the international peacebuilding industry accountable to its supposed beneficiaries and challenge the Western centric ideas of what peace entails and how peacebuilding is achieved This book will be of much interest to students and scholars of peacebuilding peace and conflict studies transitional justice African politics ethnography International Relations and security studies as well as practitioners working in the field

North African Politics Yahia H. Zoubir, Gregory White, 2015-09-16 In the aftermath of the turmoil that shook North Africa in late 2010 and early 2011 commentators and analysts have sought explanations to the factors that triggered the uprisings and to understand why a region seemingly characterized by relative stability for decades would suddenly erupt in convulsions Had an underlying dynamism in the region overwhelmed what were ostensibly stable authoritarian regimes What were the connections to events and dynamics beyond the region such as countries in the Middle East international commodity markets and environmental factors amongst others Why had allies abetted authoritarianism for so long and what were the implications for such alliances North African Politics Change and continuity brings together experts to explore these questions providing in depth analyses of important developments in the region which build upon and complement the 2008 companion volume North Africa Politics Region and the Limits of Transformation This 21 chapter volume is a key contribution that responds to the need in the Anglo American sphere for sustained critical studies on North Africa and examines political economic security social and military aspects of the region Focused studies on individual countries allow detailed discussion of regional factors The book also examines extrinsic trans regional dynamics such as North Africa s influential interdependencies with the Levant and the Gulf Europe Sahelian and sub Saharan Africa and North America Its innovative approach provides new perspectives on North Africa extending its research scope to include Egypt and exploring China s evolving role in the region Providing an important contribution in the assessment of the ever shifting political and social tectonics within and beyond North Africa North African Politics is an essential resource for students scholars and policy makers in Middle Eastern and North African Studies and beyond

Dangerous Alliances Lise Garon,2003-06 This study of Magreb s highly erratic encounter with democratization illuminates the complex and diverse encounters between civil society and the authorities in Tunisia Algeria and Morocco As opposition has built up in each society those in power have confronted the pressures for democratization The author examines the role of the media in particular both within these countries and internationally as contested but often compliant terrain between governments and dissidents She uses a dynamic systems model incorporating the existence of fundamental conflict to show how democratic institutions can become institutionalized and the constant possibility of any democratic transition being reversed

Democratic Transition in Anglophone West Africa Jibrin Ibrahim,2003 Ibrahim offers a comparative study of the democratic transitions in the Anglophone countries of West Africa identifying regional trends and discreet factors He argues that democracy is creeping up the agenda owing to a detremined struggle for human rights and because democracy has been denied to the people for so long He identifies a number of common issues across the region the rise of a militarised secular state a significant increase in public corruption the primitive accumulation of capital an intense battle to deepen democracy between civil society and the state the appropriation of gender poltiics by the state through the office of the first ladies and the growing dissidence between elections and political choice The study also addresses what may be considered an acceptable regional model in Ghana and an unacceptable example in Liberia

Closing the Circle Richard Sandbrook,2000 It is a truism that many African countries face a three pronged tribulation political tyranny failed capitalist development and violent domestic conflict The relationship between effective democratic institutions successful development and civil peace is less clear This book analyzes the experience with democratization of a carefully selected sample of countries Ghana Mali and Niger in West Africa Zambia Tanzania and Madagascar in East Africa and Sudan
