Population Reconstruction Gerrit Bloothoof, Peter Christen, Kees Mandemakers, Marijn Schraagen, 2015-07-22 This book addresses the problems that are encountered and solutions that have been proposed when we aim to identify people and to reconstruct populations under conditions where information is scarce ambiguous fuzzy and sometimes erroneous The process from handwritten registers to a reconstructed digitized population consists of three major phases reflected in the three main sections of this book The first phase involves transcribing and digitizing the data while structuring the information in a meaningful and efficient way In the second phase records that refer to the same person or group of persons are identified by a process of linkage In the third and final phase the information on an individual is combined into a reconstruction of their life course The studies and examples in this book originate from a range of countries each with its own cultural and administrative characteristics and from medieval charters through historical censuses and vital registration to the modern issue of privacy preservation Despite the diverse places and times addressed they all share the study of fundamental issues when it comes to model reasoning for population reconstruction and the possibilities and limitations of information technology to support this process It is thus not a single discipline that is involved in such an endeavor Historians social scientists and linguists represent the humanities through their knowledge of the complexity of the past the limitations of sources and the possible interpretations of information The availability of big data from digitized archives and the need for complex analyses to identify individuals calls for the involvement of computer scientists With contributions from all these fields often in direct cooperation this book is at the heart of the digital humanities and will hopefully offer a source of inspiration for future investigations The Athenaeum ,1853 Mining Journal, Railway & Commercial Gazette ,1888

The Law Times ,1853 Framing Global Health Governance Colin McInnes, Kelley Lee, 2016-01-08 Globalisation is influencing not only patterns of health and disease worldwide but how decisions on health are made and organised This is the arena of Global Health Governance Despite some successes in developing better global governance for health progress

overall has been disappointingly slow This is especially so given the number of health crises today some of which are long standing but others relatively new This book explores how progress has often been limited but also on occasion assisted by the role of ideas It identifies how health issues such as HIV AIDS pandemic influenza and tobacco control are framed in such a way as to resonate with a set of ideas or worldviews associated with particular policy communities A successful framing can generate possibilities for action but can also lead to competition when ideas conflict or suggest different pathways of response Global Health Governance therefore is an arena of competition as well as cooperation where ideas matter as well as resources and political will This book was originally published as a special issue of Global Public Health The Examiner ,1853 Australian Book Review ,2001
