Postwar Emigration to South America from Japan and the Ryukyu Islands Pedro Iacobelli, 2017-07-13 Placing a distinct focus on the role of the sending state this book examines the history of postwar Japan s migration policy linking it to the larger question of statehood and nation building in the postwar era Pedro Iacobelli delves into the role of states in shaping migration flows by exploring the genesis of the state led emigration from Japan and the US administered Ryukyu Islands to South America in the mid 20th century The study proposes an alternative political perspective on migration history to analyze the rationale and mechanisms behind the establishment of migration programs by the sending state To develop this perspective the book examines the state s emigration policies their determinants and their execution for the Japanese and Okinawan migration programs to Bolivia in the 1950s It argues that the post war migration policies that established those migration flows were a result of the political cost benefit calculations rather than only economic factors of the three governments involved With its unique focus on the role of the sending state and the relationship between Japan Okinawa and the United States this is a valuable study for students and scholars of postwar Japan and migration history

Migration Governance across Regions Ana Margheritis, 2015-12-22 Migration policies are rarely effective Examples of unintended and undesirable outcomes abound In Latin America very little is known about the impact and long term sustainability of state policies towards emigrants Following a world wide trend Ecuador Uruguay Mexico Argentina and Brazil have developed new institutions and discourses to strengthen links assist protect and enfranchise migrants and capture their resources As an adaptation of governmental techniques to global realities these policies redefine the contours of politics nations and citizenship giving place to a new form of transnational governance Building upon field research done in these five states and two receiving countries in the last decade Ana Margheritis explains the timing motivations characteristics and implications of emigration policies implemented by each country as well as the emergence of a distinctive regional consensus around a post neoliberal approach to national development and citizenship construction Margheritis argues that these outreach efforts resemble courting practices Courting is a deliberate expression of the ambivalent still incipient and open ended relationship between states and diasporas which is not exempt of conflict detours and setbacks For various reasons state diaspora relations are not unfolding into stable and fruitful partnerships yet Thus she makes diaspora engagement problematic and investigates to what extent courting might become engagement in each case Studying emigration policies of five Latin American countries and migrant responses in Southern Europe sheds light on the political dynamics and governance mechanisms that transnational migration is generating across regions It illuminates possible venues to manage multiple engagements of migrants with societies at both ends of their migration journey and unveils the opportunities for states and non state actors to cooperatively manage of migration flows
