PostFire Treatment Effectiveness for Hillslope Stabilization ,      Spine and Joint Articulation for Manual Therapists

Giles Gyer, Jimmy Michael, Ben Calvert-Painter, 2016-09-01 The book focuses on the practical application of articulation and mobilisation techniques with clear explanations and visual support of the techniques Techniques are described for all body regions Most other books for therapists include only one chapter on these important techniques This book covers a variety of best practise techniques for all areas of the body Examples are given to show how to adapt the techniques with the patient in different positions It also addresses the use of these techniques on children the elderly and pregnant women The mechanisms of each technique are explained with reference to the related anatomy and physiology Information is also given to help the therapist use the techniques safely for both themselves and their patients by adapting their own stance and posture to get maximum effect with minimum effort      Post-fire Treatment Effectiveness for Hillslope Stabilization

Peter R. Robichaud, 1998 This synthesis of post fire treatment effectiveness reviews the past decade of research monitoring and product development related to post fire hillslope emergency stabilization treatments including erosion barriers mulching chemical soil treatments and combinations of these treatments In the past ten years erosion barrier treatments contour felled logs and straw wattles have declined in use and are now rarely applied as a post fire hillslope treatment In contrast dry mulch treatments agricultural straw wood strands wood shreds etc have quickly gained acceptance as effective though somewhat expensive post fire hillslope stabilization treatments and are frequently recommended when values at risk warrant protection This change has been motivated by research that shows the proportion of exposed mineral soil or conversely the proportion of ground cover to be the primary treatment factor controlling post fire hillslope erosion Erosion barrier treatments provide little ground cover and have been shown to be less effective than mulch especially during short duration high intensity rainfall events In addition innovative options for producing and applying mulch materials have adapted these materials for use on large burned areas that are inaccessible by road Although longer term studies on mulch treatment effectiveness are on going early results and short term studies have shown that dry mulches can be highly effective in reducing post fire runoff and erosion Hydromulches have been used after some fires but they have been less effective than dry mulches in stabilizing burned hillslopes and generally decompose or degrade within a year
