Demand-side causes

In the short term, economic growth is caused by an increase in aggregate demand (AD). If there is spare capacity in the economy, then an increase in AD will cause a higher level of real GDP.

On the Causes of Economic Growth Carlos Sabillon, 2008 What s the secret Can policies grow the economy How do leaders make their countries prosper Since the earliest of times humans have endeavored to uncover the causes of prosperity Step by step Sabillon tests the principal theories on the causes of economic growth against the facts of history Here for the first time the economic statistics of the world are presented in a rationalized format that allows for an easy comparison across countries and through time with a challenge to those who study them What do the statistics show and what are the trends beyond cherished theories that suit various political purposes Tested against the historical data textbook ideas and theories consistently come up short Such analyses are highly troubling because they reveal an absence of correlation between theory and reality The data statistics illustrating the development of the world economy during the last several centuries was extracted from economic history and economic history books from publications of the World Bank the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development the International Monetary Fund the World Trade Organization the United Nations specialized agencies research institutes and country statistical publications and other books and journals Analyzing the data over geography and time Sabillon concludes that contrary to contemporary wisdom left to market forces alone the economy will not and does not flourish Only decisive intervention in support of manufacturing and technological advancement can provide growth This systematic review of history and test of accepted dogma challenges economic theorists to consider one part of the equation of economic policy that has been wiped off the blackboard in today s politically correct debates

Economic Development in Ghana and Malaysia Samuel K. Andoh,Bernice J. deGannes Scott,Grace Ofori-Abebrese,2020-02-05 Economic Development in Ghana and Malaysia investigates why two countries that appeared to be at more or less the same stage of economic development at one point in time have diverged so substantially At the time of their independence from the UK in 1957 both Ghana and Malaysia were at roughly the same stage of economic development in fact Ghana's real per capita income was slightly ahead of Malaysia's Since then Ghana's development has been sluggish while Malaysia's economy has taken off into sustained growth and today the real per capita income of Malaysia is about five times that of Ghana This volume examines the pre colonial and colonial economies of both countries and the economic policies pursued after independence In doing so it aims to identify policies which might have contributed to Malaysia's development and those which might have slowed Ghana's The authors ask whether lessons can be learned from the successes of countries such as Malaysia This detailed comparative analysis will be useful to students and researchers of development economics as well as public policy makers in developing countries It is written in language which makes it accessible to the general reader
