Research Methods in Education William Wiersma,1976 Scientism and Education Emery J. Hyslop-Margison, Ayaz Naseem, 2007-10-27 We presently live in an era dominated by scientism an ideology that believes that science and its rationalist foundation in modern epistemology has an undeniable primacy over all other ways of seeing and understanding life and the world including more humanistic mythical spiritual and artistic interpretations In being critical of scientism as I am I am not against science per se modern science and its ways of understanding and knowing the world are valuable and we should be grateful for them But it is the hegemony of the habits of mind that manifest pervasively in education that privilege science education career and research over other modes and branches of learning and knowing that I have problems with I have too often witnessed parents overtly or subtly discouraging their children from following artistic or humanistic aspirations and pushing them for training and careers in Science Math Business and Technology In this society we say in a thousand and one ways that money security power and ultimately fulfillment reside in these disciplines and not in the Arts
