170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 United States. Internal Revenue Service,2002 Pictures and the Past Alexander Bigman,2024-06-25 A fresh take on the group of artists known as the Pictures Generation reinterpreting their work as haunted by the history of fascism the threat of its return and the effects of its recurring representation in postwar American culture The artists of the Pictures Generation converging on New York City in the late 1970s indelibly changed the shape of American art Rebellious against abstraction they borrowed liberally from the aesthetics of mass media and sometimes the work of other artists It has long been thought that the group's main contribution was to upend received conceptions of authorial originality In Pictures and the Past however art critic and historian Alexander Bigman shows that there is more to this moment than just the advent of appropriation art He presents us with a bold new interpretation of the Pictures group's most significant work in particular its recurring evocations of fascist iconography In the wake of the original Pictures show curated by Douglas Crimp in 1977 artists such as Sarah Charlesworth Jack Goldstein Troy Brauntuch Robert Longo and Gretchen Bender raised pressing questions about what it means to perceive the world historically in a society saturated by images Bigman argues that their references to past cataclysms to the violence wrought by authoritarianism and totalitarianism represent not only a coded form of political commentary about the 1980s but also a piercing reflection on the nature of collective memory Throughout Bigman situates their work within a larger cultural context including parallel trends in music fashion cinema and literature Pictures and the Past probes the shifting relationships between art popular culture memory and politics in the 1970s and 80s examining how the specter of fascism loomed for artists then and the ways it still looms for us today
