Patient Provider Interaction:

Patient Provider Interaction Lisa Sparks, Melinda Villagran, 2010-11 This book offers a much needed introduction to the dynamics of the communication exchange between providers and patients in the health care environment Starting from the principle that health care providers and patients try to speak the same language to reach the best decisions for patient care but often misunderstand each other whilst navigating the process of diagnosis treatment and care Lisa Sparks and Melinda Villagran clearly explain how health communication theory and research can help us better understand these complex interactions and provide strategies for improving patient and provider communication Sparks and Villagran cover a broad range of key issues and theories related to provider patient interaction including patient information and affective needs barriers to effective communication in health care contexts and communication skills training for providers Drawing on the most current literature in this vibrant field they show the transformations that new technologies such as e mail and text messaging have brought to communication with and between patients and providers consider the roles of caregivers both formal and informal and illustrate how health care organizations impact on interpersonal interactions Throughout the book Sparks and Villagran deftly illustrate how communicative understandings of patient provider interaction can have positive practical outcomes feeding into health behaviour change creating a communication environment which can improve health literacy and ultimately lead to better health outcomes With groundbreaking insights on point explanations and deeply moving examples Patient and Provider Interaction illuminates and enriches what is most often one of the most important interactions of our lives

Patient-Provider Communications: Caring to Listen Valerie A. Patient-provider Interactions Allison Jane Moon,2015

Increasing the health literacy of the nation has become a national priority for major health care agencies in attempt to improve effective use of the health care system and overall health outcomes The present study sought to explore the impact of patient provider interactions on health literacy and the effect of demographic characteristics on both health literacy and perceptions of patient provider interactions Perceptions of patient provider interactions were evaluated via four communicative dimensions understanding and communicative ability respect and trust participatory decision making and receptionist helpfulness A closed ended questionnaire was administered orally to 82 participants to gather their perceptions of interactions with health care providers assess their health literacy and record various demographic characteristics Results indicated that those with perceptions of better quality interactions with health care providers had higher average health literacy scores There were statistically significant differences in health literacy between those reporting high and low levels of each communicative dimension with the exception of the receptionist helpfulness variable for which no significant differences were found The oldest age groups reported significantly more understanding communicative ability respect and trust with health care providers than the younger age group Annual household income also had an effect on perceptions of understanding and communicative ability with those in lower income groups reporting less understanding and communicative ability The present findings support past literature that found higher health literacy to be associated with more educational achievement Contrary to past research the oldest age group had a significantly higher average health literacy score than the younger age group and those identifying as black African American had the highest average health literacy score Based on the findings of the current study health care providers may want to increase their focus on facilitating quality interactions and effective communication with patients in order to improve health literacy care adherence and outcomes The results that suggest a possible change in the demographic characteristics that make people at risk for low health literacy provide a rationale for health care providers to use a universal health literacy approach This approach seeks to provide easy to understand explanations and medical resources to all patients without any assumptions of low or high health literacy Overall the current study suggests the importance of patient provider interactions as part of the complex system impacting health literacy
