EBOOK: Microeconomics Wyn Morgan, Michael Katz, Harvey Rosen, 2009-03-16 Microeconomics 2nd European Edition offers comprehensive and accessible coverage of microeconomic theory explaining how this is used to analyse and evaluate contemporary market systems The book draws on relevant real world examples to highlight how theory can help to solve or understand a range of problems and is a central basis for thinking like an economist

A Course in Microeconomic Theory David M. Kreps, 2020-05-26 David M Kreps has developed a text in microeconomics that is both challenging and user friendly The work is designed for the first year graduate microeconomic theory course and is accessible to advanced undergraduates as well. Placing unusual emphasis on modern noncooperative game theory, it provides the student and instructor with a unified treatment of modern microeconomic theory, one that stresses the behavior of the individual actor, consumer or firm, in various institutional settings. The author has taken special pains to explore the fundamental assumptions of the theories and techniques studied, pointing out both strengths and weaknesses. The book begins with an exposition of the standard models of choice and the market, with extra attention paid to choice under uncertainty and dynamic choice. General and partial equilibrium approaches are blended so that the student sees these approaches as points along a continuum. The work then turns to more modern developments. Readers are introduced to noncooperative game theory and shown how to model games and determine solution concepts. Models with incomplete information, the folk theorem, and reputation and bilateral bargaining are covered in depth. Information economics is explored next. A closing discussion concerns firms as organizations and gives readers a taste of transaction cost economics.

Lectures In The Microeconomics Of Choice: Foundations, Consumers, And Producers William David Anthony Bryant, 2023-02-17

People pursue their own interests, whatever those interests might be. Some people have interests that are narrow and selfish, while others have interests that are broad and altruistic. The idea that people are self-interested underpins all of economic analysis and raises two fundamental questions: 1. How do people choose the actions they think will further their own interests? 2. Can the potentially conflicting interests of different people be made to mesh in some sort of socio-economic equilibrium? This book is devoted to a detailed study of the first question. Its Companion Volume, Economy-Wide Microeconomics: Equilibrium, Optimality, Applications, and Tests, makes a detailed study of the second question. Following some foundational remarks, this book studies the Arrow-Debreu theory of consumer choice. That theory supposes people choose so as to maximize a complete, continuous, transitive, and reflexive binary preference relation over a non-empty and compact choice set. The book then studies numerous refinements, generalizations, and extensions of each of these restrictions, up to and including recent work on behavioral theories of choice and choice behaviour when preferences are intransitive, incomplete, discontinuous. Also considered is choice behaviour in environments that are not necessarily compact. A study is also made of intertemporal choice and choice under uncertainty. The study of Arrow-Debreu choice theory and its extensions are presented from the Primal, Dual, and Revealed Preference points of view. Consumers are not the only agents in the economy; as Producers are present as well. Beginning with a study of the Arrow-Debreu idea that producers choose from a convex production set so as to maximize profit, the book considers extensions and generalizations of this framework, particularly to non-convex environments. The study is presented from the Primal and Dual points of view. The final chapter in the book provides a link to its Companion Volume. The Chapter indicates how the theories of consumer and producer choice studied here help inform answers of the second question posed above. Resources are
