The Age of Milton C. A. Patrides, Raymond B. Waddington, 1980

Shakespeare's Use of the Arts of Language Sister Miriam Joseph, 2008-09 Grammar school students in Shakespeare's time were taught to recognise the two hundred figures of speech that Renaissance scholars had derived from Latin and Greek sources from amphibologia through onomatopoeia to zeugma This knowledge was one element in their thorough grounding in the liberal arts of logic grammar and rhetoric known as the trivium In Shakespeare's Use of the Arts of Language Sister Miriam Joseph writes The extraordinary power vitality and richness of Shakespeare's language are due in part to his genius in part to the fact that the unsettled linguistic forms of his age promoted to an unusual degree the spirit of creativeness and in part to the theory of composition then prevailing The purpose of this study is to present to the modern reader the general theory of composition current in Shakespeare's England The author then lays out those figures of speech in simple understandable patterns and explains each one with examples from Shakespeare Her analysis of his plays and anywhere in the commentary      Descartes's Fictions Emma Gilby, 2019-03-15 Descartes's Fictions traces common movements in early modern philosophy and literary method Emma Gilby reassesses the significance of Descartes's writing by bringing his philosophical output into contact with the literary treatises, exempla and debates of his age. She argues that humanist theorizing about poetics represents a vital intellectual context for Descartes's work. She offers readings of the controversies to which this poetic theory gives rise with particular reference to the genre of tragicomedy, questions of verisimilitude or plausibility and the figures of Guez de Balzac and Pierre Corneille. Drawing on what Descartes says about and to his many contemporaries and correspondents embedded in the early modern republic of letters, this volume shows that poetics provides a repository of themes and images to which he returns repeatedly: fortune, method, error, providence, passion and imagination, for instance. Like the poets and theorists of his age, Descartes is also drawn to the forms of attention that people may bring to his work. This interest finds expression in the mature Cartesian metaphysics of the Meditations as well as later in the moral philosophy of his correspondence with Elisabeth of Bohemia or the Passions of the Soul. This volume thus bridges the gap between Cartesian criticism and late humanist literary culture in France.

Charlotte Riddell's City Novels and Victorian Business Silvana Colella, 2016-03-22 In spite of the popularity she enjoyed during her lifetime, Charlotte Riddell (1832–1906) has received little attention from scholars. Silvana Colella makes a strong case for the relevance of Riddell's novels as narrative experiments that shed new light on the troubled experience of Victorian capitalism. Drawing on her impressive knowledge of commerce and finance, Riddell produced several novels that narrate the fate of individuals—manufacturers, accountants, entrepreneurs, City men and their female companions—who pursue the liberal dream of self-determination in the unstable world of London business. Colella situates novels such as Too Much Alone, George Geith, The Race for Wealth, Austin Friars and The Senior Partner in the broader cultural context, examining business manuals, commercial biographies and essays to highlight Victorian constructions of the business ideal and the changing cultural status of the City of London. Combining historicist and formalist readings, Colella charts the progression of Riddell's imaginative commitment to the business world, focusing on the author's gendered awareness of the promises and disenchantments associated with the changing dynamics of capitalist modernisation. Her book enriches our understanding of Victorian business culture, the literary history of capitalism and the intersections of gender, genre and economics.
