Parenting Matters National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Supporting the Parents of Young Children, 2016-11-21

Decades of research have demonstrated that the parent child dyad and the environment of the family which includes all primary caregivers are at the foundation of children's well being and healthy development. From birth children are learning and rely on parents and the other caregivers in their lives to protect and care for them. The impact of parents may never be greater than during the earliest years of life when a child's brain is rapidly developing and when nearly all of her or his experiences are created and shaped by parents and the family environment. Parents help children build and refine their knowledge and skills charting a trajectory for their health and well being during childhood and beyond. The experience of parenting also impacts parents themselves. For instance parenting can enrich and give focus to parents' lives generate stress or calm and create any number of emotions including feelings of happiness sadness fulfillment and anger. Parenting of young children today takes place in the context of significant ongoing developments. These include a rapidly growing body of science on early childhood increases in funding for programs and services for families changing demographics of the U.S. population and greater diversity of family structure. Additionally parenting is increasingly being shaped by technology and increased access to information about parenting. Parenting Matters identifies parenting knowledge attitudes and practices associated with positive developmental outcomes in children ages 0-8 universal preventive and targeted strategies used in a variety of settings that have been effective with parents of young children and that support the identified knowledge attitudes and practices and barriers to and facilitators for parents' use of practices that lead to healthy child outcomes as well as their participation in effective programs and services. This report makes recommendations directed at an array of stakeholders for promoting the wide scale adoption of effective programs and services for parents and on areas that warrant further research to inform policy and practice. It is meant to serve as a roadmap for the future of parenting policy research and practice in the United States.

Evidence-based Parenting Education James Ponzetti, Jr., 2015-08-14. This is the first book to provide a multidisciplinary critical and global overview of evidence based parenting education (PEd) programs. Readers are introduced to the best practices for designing implementing and evaluating effective PEd programs in order to teach clients how to be effective parents. Noted contributors from various disciplines examine evidence based programs from the U.S. Canada Europe Asia Australia as well as web based alternatives. The best practices used in a number of venues are explored often by the developers themselves. Examples and discussion questions encourage application of the material. Critical guidance for those who wish to design implement and evaluate PEd programs in various settings is provided. All chapters feature learning goals an introduction conclusion key points discussion questions and additional resources. In addition to these elements chapters in Part III follow a consistent structure so readers can easily compare programs theoretical foundations and history needs assessment and target audience program goals objectives curriculum issues cultural Implications evidence based research and evaluation and professional preparation and training issues. The editor has taught parenting and family life education courses for years This book reviews the key information that his students needed to become competent professionals Highlights of the book s coverage include Comprehensive summary of evidence based PEd training programs in one volume Prepares readers for professional practice as a Certified Family Life Educator CFLE by highlighting the fundamentals of developing and evaluating PEd programs Exposes readers to models of parenting education from around the world The book opens with a historical overview of PEd development It is followed by 20 chapters divided in four parts The initial six chapters focus on fundamentals of parenting education program design implementation evaluation the role of mediators and moderators as well as the U S Cooperative Extension Parent Framework The three chapters in Part II review the latest status of parenting education in Europe Asia and web based alternatives Part III presents ten stellar evidence based parenting programs offered around the world In addition to the learning goals introduction conclusion key points discussion questions and additional resources that are found in all chapters those in Part III also consider theoretical foundations and history needs assessment and target audience program goals objectives curriculum issues cultural Implications evidence based research and evaluation and professional preparation and training issues Part IV reviews future directions Ideal for advanced undergraduate or graduate courses in parent education parent child relations parenting early childhood or family life education family therapy and home school and community services taught in human development and family studies psychology social work sociology education nursing and more the book also serves as a resource for practitioners counselors clergy members and policy makers interested in evidence based PEd programs or those seeking to become CFLEs or Parent Educators

The Culture of Child Care Kay E. Sanders, Alison Wishard Guerra, 2016-03-09 As societies are experiencing increasing levels of immigration from contexts outside of the Western industrialized world child care programs are experiencing simultaneously increasing diversity in enrollment A question that has been raised by early childhood advocates and practitioners is whether the former articulations regarding definitions of quality models of relationships and peer relations in the child care context are accurate and relevant within the increasing racial linguistic and ethnic diversity of the United States The Culture of Child Care provides a much needed integration of research pertaining to crucial aspects of early childhood development attachment in non familial contexts peer relations among ethnically and linguistically diverse children and the developmental importance of child care contexts during early childhood This volume highlights the interconnections between these three distinct bodies of research and crosses disciplinary boundaries by linking psychological and educational theories to the improvement of young children s development and experiences within child care The importance of cultural diversity in early childhood is widely acknowledged and discussed but up until now there has been little substantive work with a cultural focus on today s educational and early child care settings This innovative volume will be a unique resource for a wide range of early childhood professionals including basic and applied developmental researchers early childhood educators and advocates and policymakers

Creating Effective Parenting

Plans John Hartson, Brenda Payne, 2006 According to these pediatric psychologists the best interest of the child calls for a developmentally appropriate parenting plan that is custody that accurately reflects the child's physical and psychological development. Even now this concept often faces courtroom challenges as it can conflict with the traditional lawyer-client relationship. This book explores developing alternate parenting schedules or custody with the child's best interest and developmental needs considered first.
