

MICROBIOLOGY/PATHOLOGY QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

1. Herpes simplex virus type 1 is clinically most often associated with

1. neural lesions.
2. genital lesions.
3. cervical carcinoma.
4. oral and ocular lesions.
5. none of the above.

4. oral and ocular lesions.

Herpes simplex 1, or HSV-1 infection, is one of the most common viral infections. Almost all individuals are infected between 6 and 18 months of life, but only a small proportion become symptomatic. Those who do develop gingiva stomatitis which is characterized by multiple vesicular lesions in and around the mouth. Vesicles may also erupt over the cornea and cause blindness. The recurrent form of HSV-1 infection is extremely common. After the primary infection, the virus becomes latent in the dorsal root ganglia. At times of stress, it reactivates and causes the common fever blister. This is a vesicular lesion at the mucocutaneous border of the lip.

Neural lesions, choice 1, are rare complications of HSV-1 infection, though the advent of AIDS has made HSV-1 neurologic disease a significant clinical entity. A neurologic illness caused by HSV-1 is encephalitis. This may occur during primary infection or with reactivation. Genital lesions, choice 2, may occur with HSV infection. However, they are usually caused by herpes simplex virus II infection. HSV-II has also been implicated in the pathogenesis of cervical carcinoma along with other viruses, most notably the papilloma virus. HSV-1 does not induce cervical carcinoma.

A. Actinobacillus actinomycescomitans

2. A 17-year-old patient has periodontitis involving the anterior teeth with sparse plaque. Which of the following is the probable primary pathogen?

- A. Actinobacillus actinomycescomitans
- B. Bacteroides forsythus
- C. Fusobacterium nucleatum
- D. Porphyromonas gingivalis
- E. Prevotella intermedia

Adult chronic periodontitis is usually associated with calculus, plaque, inflammation and anaerobic organisms within the periodontal pocket. These organisms include Bacteroides, Fusobacteria, Porphyromonas, and Prevotella.

In this case, however, the young age of the patient, and the absence of plaque and calculus indicate a different disease. Juvenile periodontitis has a site predilection for incisors and first molars. It is usually very fast in progression, and not associated with high plaque and calculus levels. Its main cause is the organism Actinobacillus actinomycescomitans, also mercifully known as "aa". So the correct answer to question is choice A.

1. carcinoma of the prostate.
2. benign prostatic hyperplasia.
3. malignant neoplasm involving the urethra.
4. bladder metastasis of bronchogenic carcinoma.

2. benign prostatic hyperplasia.

Benign prostatic hyperplasia or BPH is so common that it is considered by some to be a normal consequence of aging. Half of men over the age of 50 have BPH and almost all men over the age of 70 have BPH. BPH is characterized by the formation of nodules in the prostatic tissue surrounding the prostatic urethra. When these nodules enlarge, urinary obstruction often follows. Most obstruction is partial obstruction. It causes voiding difficulty. The individual cannot fully empty his bladder and he must make frequent trips to the restroom.

Complete obstruction may also occur. The individual rapidly develops hydronephrosis and acute renal failure. This is a life-threatening condition as the renal failure become less and less reversible as time elapses. Carcinoma of the prostate, choice 1, rarely causes urinary retention. The carcinoma arises in the lateral lobes of the prostate. It must reach very large proportions to compromise the prostatic urethra which is located centrally. Malignant neoplasms of the urethra, choice 3, may cause urinary retention. These lesions are extremely rare, however. Bronchogenic carcinoma, choice 4, may metastasize to the bladder. However, metastatic lesions and primary tumors of the bladder usually cause hematuria rather than urinary retention.
